

Roman to carry patriotic Eagle vignette

By MITCH KEHETIAN
Enterprise-Roman Editor

This Fourth of July finds America at peace for the first time in almost a decade—and the President's pledge to foster a new generation of peace.

At the same time, we must never lose sight that while we seek that generation of peace—we must remain strong at home and abroad to preserve democracy.

In keeping with this year's Fourth of July theme, The Romulus Roman, starting with this week's edition will carry the vignette of the proud bald Eagle—symbolic of freedom and the American way of life.

WE'VE SELECTED the bald Eagle as this newspaper's vignette because the powerful bird is strictly an American species.

'And as we give thanks for peace, let us also pray for the continuation of the will and spirit typified by those who served to insure America's future.'

While the new bald Eagle vignette will enhance the decorative make-up of our front page, the powerful bird also will serve as a reminder to this newspaper that a free press will keep America strong.

And with the observance of this nation's 177th birthday this July 4, we could think of no better time than today to add the bald Eagle trademark to The Romulus Roman.

FOR THE VAST majority of this nation's dedicated citizenry, Old Glory still reflects pride—the bald Eagle included.

And while we're on the subject of Americanism and the Fourth of July, we'd like to share some comments that came our way from the American Legion.

The national veterans' organization, in an editorial on this cherished national holiday, states: "As we celebrate the 177th birthday of the nation let us also celebrate the fact that American bravery and dedication are qualities still in abundance."

"And as we give thanks for peace, let us also pray for the continuation of the strong national will and spirit typified by the sacrifice of those who served to insure America's future."

THE LEGION editorial, addressing itself to the recent Nixon-Brezhnev talks, stresses "Our President has brought an end to the divisive conflict in Vietnam, and opened up new initiatives with the Eastern Bloc. We are now dealing with traditional opponents from a position of enlightened self interest—discussing our relationships in terms of trade exchanges rather than nuclear exchanges."

The Romulus Roman commends the American Legion editorial, and joins with the majority of America's citizens who today enjoy freedom because men fought to keep us a free society.

The bald Eagle was adopted as the national symbol of America by the Continental Congress.

POW Lt. Col. Donald Odell, in his special series for Enterprise readers also writes about a noticeable "rebirth of Americanism in the states."

A little patriotism is good for every American—that's why the Eagle vignette has been added to The Romulus Roman.

Council adopts budget up more than $700,000

By JIM CARAVALLAH
Roman Staff Writer

The Romulus City Council has adopted a $3.4 million operating budget for fiscal 1973-74, up nearly $700,000 above last year's $2.7 million budget.

To help finance the cost of the new budget, the council has levied a tax of 4.6 mills ($4.60 per $1,000 in assessed valuation), down one-half mill from last year's levy.

'The council cut more than $300,000 from the figure requested by the city's department heads.'

The city anticipates approximately $591,000 in income from the 4.6 mill figure, approximately the same income as the 5.1 mill figure raised last year.

ALTHOUGH the budget is up more than 25 per cent above last year's total figure, the council cut more than $300,000 from the figure requested by the city's department heads.

Department heads requested $3.7 million to operate the city, nearly $1 million above last year's total budget figure.

Departments absorbing cuts in their budgets include police, nearly $212,000 from the requested $838,000; treasurer, nearly $61,000 from the proposed $122,000; clerk, $31,000 from a proposed $151,000 budget; planning, $28,000 from a proposed $97,000 budget; recreation, nearly $27,000 from a proposed $126,000 budget and the fire department, nearly $12,000 from a proposed $184,000 budget.

BESIDES the operating budget, the council approved a $3.4 million water and sewer budget, including more than $850,000 for new construction and $700,000 for contractual services.

Included in the water and sewer budget is nearly $700,000 in surplus funds left over from the last budget.

Set aside in the major and local street funds is more than $900,000 for maintenance and repairs of local streets.

The total millage levy approved by the city council came to 12 ($12 per $1,000 in assessed valuation).

THE FIGURE is down one-half mill from last year's 12.5 levy.

The millage is designed to raise a total of $2.2 million, including $660,000 for the water bond issue passed in 1957 and $880,000 for the sewer bond issue passed that same year.

The other four-tenths of a mill levy will go to pay the city's obligation to the People's Community Hospital Authority.

The city will pay $90,000 to the Authority this year.

Tax base in Romulus 'in pretty good shape'

By all signs, Romulus is in pretty good shape, tax basewise, according to Mayor Hyle Carmichael.

In figures released this week, the mayor reported that single family home residents of the city pay only 27.42 per cent of the total taxes in the community.

The break down prepared by Carmichael shows that industry pays a 51.67 per cent of the total tax in the community, including 23.66 per cent for land and buildings and another 28.01 per cent for personal property.

Commercial concerns in the city pay 12.13 per cent of the tax load, while the Detroit Metropolitan Airport absorbs 6.84 per cent of the tax load and agricultural concerns pay another 2.25 per cent of the load.

The break-down means that for every $100 in taxes collected by the city, residents of the city pay $27.42, and industry, commerce, the airport and agricultural concerns pay $72.58.

Mayor Carmichael says park land not utilized

By JIM CARAVALLAH
Roman Staff Writer

Romulus Mayor Hyle Carmichael says it is folly to worry about purchasing park land, when present park land is utilized at only 30 per cent of its capacity.

"We hear of plans to purchase eight new parks at a cost of $1 million to the taxpayers," Carmichael said, "and we know that school district park sites are only used at about 30 per cent of their capacity."

"It's absurd to talk about land purchases, when the city has the opportunity to expand services on existing facilities."

TERRY TROUTT, candidate for mayor on the Nov. 7 general election ballot, has promised to purchase eight new parks at a cost of under $1 million, if elected to office.

Troutt has promised sporting opportunities at the parks, including baseball, football, tennis, basketball and skating in the winter.

"I believe it is better to explore the possibility of working together with the schools to expand recreation," Carmichael said. "For the city to buy land and implement a program, and the schools to buy land and implement programs is only a costly duplication of effort, which hurts the taxpayers."

The mayor said that he and the administration of the school board have agreed in principle to joining recreation programs, but said the slow up in implementing the program comes from a lack of representation on the city's recreation commission.

THE COMMISSION'S being expanded now, to include two new members, and I would hope those are school representatives," said Carmichael. "It's a matter of communication now, and sound planning to develop a program which benefits all Romulus residents."

Carmichael said it is folly to assume that each unit of government should have its own program, "because the members of each unit are the same — the taxpayers of this area."

He cited the recent joint effort by Canton Township, Plymouth Township, Plymouth and the Plymouth School District in establishing a recreation commission as an example of how there can be inter-community cooperation on the recreation level.

"Those communities realized there is no need to spend money for the same thing, when the money comes from one area — the citizens of each of their respective governmental units."

Carmichael said that the community has more than 40 acres of park land vacant at this time, in addition to all the school district land.

"We should develop these facilities as swiftly as possible, before spending millions on some grand scheme in other areas," he said.

County committee does nothing to extend road patrol service

The Public Safety and Judiciary Committee of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners took no action on a request by area township supervisors to extend services. The services will end in August because the Wayne County Board of Commissioners only funded the road patrol through the summer.

Area supervisors who met with the committee last week sought an extension of the Wayne County Sheriff's Department road patrol service. The Public Safety and Judiciary Committee unofficially approved the extension, but the Committee Chairman Dick Buss said there were not enough commissioners present at the meeting to form a quorum.

He said the committee will schedule a meeting within the next few weeks to discuss possible extension. And although the extension approval should come easily from the committee, he said.

"It will be a lot tougher going when it comes to the full board of commissioners."

LAST WEDNESDAY the committee unofficially extended the road patrol service for three months, until Nov. 30.

The Wayne County Board of Commissioners controls funds for the sheriff's department. The original decision of the board to discontinue services is in line with its decision two years ago to eventually Vern Moore was installed as the secretary and John Bardon was installed as the treasurer.

Trustees for the year include Edmund Zakerski, Charles Larabell and past president Luke Wegienka.

Ernest Miller, the oldest officer in the club, gave the oath of office.

WILLIAM GIBBONS, representative for district governor Hal Mabley was in attendance.

The club awarded Jessica Simonson with a $150 scholarship during the regular meeting. Edward Dulecki, chairman of the fruit cake sale, Elwood Krzyse, chairman of the Easter seal campaign and Gene Rakotz, chairman of the pancake and sausage dinner received recognition for their help.

The club is planning a trip to Edmund Zakerski's cottage in Chelsea this month.

Mayor candidate Troutt offers program for storm water run-off

Romulus residents may have the opportunity to remove an assessment for maintaining drainage ditches running to Lake Erie in favor of constructing a drainage system of their own, if Terry Troutt has his way.

Troutt, a candidate for the mayoral seat in Romulus, said he favors a program, first conceived by former Township Supervisor Edmund Bizek Sr., in the late 1960's, to divert Romulus' storm water run-off to the Huron River in Huron Township.

"The plan, when first conceived, called for building a large intercept east of Middlebelt Road to the Huron River," explained Troutt.

"I FEEL, in the long run, such a program would be cheaper. Romulus residents are paying maintenance costs on ditches which carry water through Taylor, Rockwood and Brownstown, because we're at the end of the drainage district."

According to Troutt, because Romulus lies on the highest ground in Western Wayne County, all water run-off from the city must travel great distances — up to 15 miles — before it is dumped into the Great Lakes.

"It means that everytime a bridge in Brownstown is too small for the water to pass through, Romulus residents must pay part of the cost of its reconstruction to allow more water to flow," he said.

"I'd like to see that money put into the Romulus drainage system."

Romulus has a large portion of land which cannot be developed — unless — and adequate storm drainage system is implemented, according to Troutt.

THE LAND, once drained, would help pay the cost of the project.

"I would favor paying for the program with a city millage, because industry, which makes great use of the storm drainage, would pay a large share of the cost," Troutt said.

The candidate added, he would see to it that the Detroit Metropolitan Airport picked up a large share of the cost of the project.

"Everytime we turn around, the airport is taking more land from Romulus so it can build holding ponds for storm water run-off," Troutt explained.

"I'M SURE the airport would be willing to pay for storm drainage, so it wouldn't have to use this expensive means of preventing flooding."

Holding ponds store the heavy run-off from storms to prevent the drainage system of southern Wayne County from washing out and flooding during heavy storm periods. Water in the ponds is (Continued on Page 3-A)

Moore to meet with officials on postal problem in Huron

The supervisor of Huron Township will testify before a Subcommittee on Postal Services at 9 a.m. July 13 in the City-County Building, Detroit.

Supervisor George M. Moore said he is seeking comments from area residents on postal service in the township.

Postal service is a problem in Huron because the township is in five postal districts, Moore said. The districts include Huron, Belleville, Romulus, Carlington and Flat Rock.

The five districts sort of mess the township up," Moore said. "I don't think we get our fair share in revenue funds. We probably are getting only 50 per cent of the funds we should be getting."

Federal revenue sharing funds are distributed on a basis of income tax returns. Many area residents list their postal district on income tax returns instead of the township, so Huron doesn't get its fair share, Moore contends.

Moore would like to see one mailing district formed from Huron Township. He said attempts have been made in the past to consolidate the districts into one, to no avail.

The supervisor said he was asked to testify before the subcommittee by its chairman James Hanley.

Moore would like suggestions from area residents on how postal service could be improved. He said he would like to develop a good argument for establishing a single postal district in Huron. Area residents have until July 9 to contact Moore with postal problems or suggestions at 753-1996.

National Champions Rodeo to be held in Belleville

Many of the top rodeo cowboys and cowgirls in the United States are gearing up this week for the National Championship Rodeo which will be held Saturday and Sunday at the 4-H Fairgrounds on Quirk Road near Belleville. At last year's rodeo more than 75 of the top rodeo performers competed for $3,500 in prize money during the three-day event.

Swim meet to be held at Lower Huron Park

Approximately 800 to 1,000 boys and girls, ages 17 and under, are expected to compete in the 13th Annual Class A Swim Meet to be held at Lower Huron Metropark near Belleville on Wednesday and Thursday, July 11 and 12. Starting time is 5:00 p.m. on Wednesday, with relays and long distance individual medleys scheduled; while Thursday's events being at 9:00 a.m. and will continue until the completion of all races. Individuals may enter three events per day, plus relays. Warm-up times begin one half hour before the first scheduled event on both days.

For additional information, phone Mrs. Prior (682-6591 - Orchard Lake) or Lower Huron Park pool office (697-9182).

Jack Wiseman, "the number one, all-around cowboy in the nation," last year had to settle for second place prize money in bull riding.

He was defeated by Ken Soule, a Michigan cowboy. Soule's score of 77 earned him $257 for his eight-second ride.

The Huron Valley Conservation Association which sponsors the rodeo, attracts some of the nation's top rodeo performers by providing top prize money. This year, they are "sweetening" the pot by an additional $800 to insure a "highly competitive program."

All of the rodeo events will be staged at each of the three performances of the rodeo.

The events include bareback bronco riding, saddle bronc riding, calf roping, steer wrestling, bull riding and girls' barrel racing.

Area man gets ROTC scholarship

An ambition of a Belleville High School honor graduate to begin a military career was partially answered when he was awarded a ROTC scholarship.

The honor student, Mark H. Bryant, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hayden L. Bryant, 4985 Denton Rd., Belleville, leaves for Virginia Military Institute, Lexington, Va., on Aug. 26 to begin a "desired" military career.

Mark, who has an older sister, Victoria, 20; and a younger brother, Michael, 15, applied for a West Point Academy appointment.

Although he met all academic requirements, Mark failed to pass all of the physical requirements (eyes), it was reported.

The decision by officials of West Point Academy was reported to be a major disappointment to Mark, but he did not falter in his desire for a military career.

Mark's scholastic record plus his good showing at entrance tests for West Point paid off in the presentation of a coveted ROTC four-year scholarship to Virginia Military Institute.

Brooker Edwards to run for council re-election

Romulus City Councilman Brooker Edwards, running for re-election in the Aug. 7 primary election, said he has nothing to be ashamed of in his past three years in office.

"I have tried to be fair in my endeavors to serve the citizens," Edwards said. "The council has had a lot of criticism from some of the citizens, but let me point out, that no matter what you do there always will be a backlash."

Edwards blames many of the criticisms of the council on lack of action by the city administration.

"FOR INSTANCE, the roads not being maintained properly during the winter months" is the fault of the administration, according to Edwards.

"The city council appropriated $300,000 in the 1972-73 budget for road maintenance," Edwards said.

"At the end of the fiscal year, there is a balance of $250,000. The council's job is to appropriate funds to operate the city."

Edwards claims it is not the council's fault that many water bills have turned delinquent.

"We have accumulated a large number of delinquent water bills, due to a lack of enforcement by the administration," he said.

He claims some bills total $12,000, and, if it were not for the council's action to appoint an accountant and to threaten court action against those with outstanding accounts, the administration would have agreed to settle the bills for a smaller amount.

"THREE YEARS ago, I was elected on the so-called IQ slate," he explained. "I am no longer a member of this organization, because, in my early career as an official, I was dictated to, and I refuse to be a 'yes-man' or a rubber stamp, because I feel the citizens elected me to vote on my own convictions."

Edwards said Romulus has taken great strides during his time in office.

Among those programs for which he takes some credit are the purchase of a new department of public works building, purchasing new equipment, cutting taxes by one-half mill—a savings of $93,000—improving the city's street lighting system, extending the water and sewer program, purchasing a bus for the city's senior citizens, paying more than 12 miles of roads—a project to be completed by September—improving police protection, certifying an ambulance service and extending the recreation program.

Molenda to run for city council

Michael Molenda, a resident of Romulus during the past 14 years, said he is seeking election to the Romulus City Council to improve the road system of the city and to bring a shopping center to Romulus.

"There is a dire need for better roads in the Romulus area," said Molenda, administration chairman of the St. Aloysius Parish Council and member of the school budget committee.

"The roads haven't been graded efficiently due to the fact that the workers haven't received proper training."

Molenda said that Romulus residents are suffering from inflated prices for supplies throughout the community.

"There is much to be desired in the way of supplying goods and services in the City of Romulus," he said. "The women and retirees of our fair city have been sadly neglected in that respect."

"There is an immediate need for a major supermarket in Romulus to bring in the necessary competition and force prices down."

Molenda, a member of UAW Local 483, is employed in the Detroit Diesel Allison, General Motors Warehouse Division in the overseas shipping department.

MICHAEL MOLEND

He lives at 10625 Hannan Rd., and is the father of seven children.

Molenda served in the U.S. Navy during World War II and is a past member of the American Institute of Banking, where he received two certificates in commercial banking.

He attended the University of Detroit evening college, taking special courses in accounting and business law.

Molenda is a past secretary of the Romulus Commercial and Industrial Development Committee. He served on the committee for four years.

PERPETUAL CHARTER—VFW Post 9568 of Romulus recently received its "Perpetual Charter" from Department of Michigan Past Commander Zigmund Cybulski (right). Receiving the charter, which establishes the post permanently is (from left) Past Commander, Bill Harvey, Quartermaster Bob Mach and Commander-elect Roger Walters. The post received the charter after signing up 25 members.

Area boy dies in accident

The son of a candidate for the Romulus City Council was buried Monday after a fatal accident last week.

Michael Trumble, 13, was buried following services at St. Aloysius Church in Romulus. He died in a bicycle accident last Thursday.

According to police reports, the youth was riding his bicycle on Goddard Road at approximately 7 p.m., when he was struck by a car.

According to the driver of the vehicle, the youngster had swerved into his path.

Police pressed no charges in the accident, but temporarily impounded both the bicycle and the car involved in the accident.

The youth is survived by his father, Jack, and his mother, Jaqueline.

In addition, the youth is survived by his brother, Daniel, 17, and two sisters, Gail, 15 and Dolores, 11.

Grandparents of the youth are Mrs. Lenore Trumble of Romulus and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Murray of Marine City.

Burial was at Holy Sepulchre Cemetery at Southfield.

Troutt offers storm water run-off program

"I want to stress that I am not advocating any new tax on the residents of Romulus," Troutt said. "It's completely up to the voters if they want the tax or not, but I'm sure, with proper preparation, and explanation, the voters will understand the need and the benefit of providing more storm drainage by a more direct route."

TROUTT SAID he was one of those who campaigned

"from house to house, in block club meetings and school houses" for the city's new, nearly complete, water and sanitary sewer system — financed by general obligation bonds.

"We took the time to explain to the people the need of the system, and promised them we'd remove the millage we requested as soon as we paid off some of the bonds," said the candidate.

"And we did too," he added. "In 1963 we dropped one mill from the water tax, but it was put back on the next year."

Today, according to Troutt, citizens of Romulus are paying four mills for water bonds and three mills for sanitary sewer bonds.

"WE APPROVED a 20-year bond issue, and it's nearly up, and the taxpayers still are paying on the bonds," he said. "It wouldn't be so bad today, if the present administration had fought harder for Romulus."

Troutt said that the Bizek township administration had secured $1 million from the airport authority the last time the airport expanded during the township days.

"But, how, we hear of the airport going below Eureka Road, requiring the road to swing south, and the present administration doesn't get a penny from them," he said.

"WITH BIZEK, the airport paid for the sanitary sewer capacity purchased for the land the airport took, but the airport paid nothing under the present administration," he said.

Troutt said because of the precedent set during Bizek's years in office he is confident the airport will pick up a large portion of the drainage program's cost.

"The airport uses a lot of the drainage," he said, "so it is only just the airport pays for that drainage."

Dear Fellow Romulus Citizens:

I wish to express my sincere gratitude to all those people who signed my nominating petition for the City Council and for their encouragement, support, and offers of help.

Since all the people of Romulus share the same dream of an improved image of our city along with the want of better roads and housing, more recreation, and the much needed commercial development, etc., I sincerely hope that we will continue in the future as we have in the past, to work together toward these goals.

Please let us not forget to encourage others to express their opinions and needs as this is where Romulus will show progress. Those willing to work to "make it happen" can make it happen.

Positive efforts will directly benefit all of us.

Sincerely,

Beverly McAnally runs for council in Romulus

Beverly McAnally believes "one person can do something" and is trying to prove it in her campaign for the Romulus City Council.

"I did consider running on a slate, because running a council campaign is expensive, and I probably could benefit from the experience of others who have sought office—but I could not identify with, or agree with either slate's fine objectives for the citizens of Romulus," she said.

Mrs. McAnally believes "our concern should be with people."

"WHAT GOOD is a wonderful tax base, or industry, unless the people benefit from the taxes and the quality of their lives improve?"

Mrs. McAnally has been involved in "people oriented" projects for the past 12 years in Romulus—particularly through work in the Romulus School District.

She has worked on opening the buildings of the school district to the community after school hours, and was instrumental in making the Romulus High School a "community school."

She also was able to establish the Wayne County Community College branch in Romulus and was active in adult education programs.

If elected, she promises to establish other programs, on a community level, which will involve all citizens.

"I WANT to improve recreation," she said. "I fail to see the wisdom in building facilities the people are unable to maintain."

"It is a black eye to Romulus that the Elmer Johnson Park lies overgrown with weeds, while the children of our community need a place to go."

Mrs. McAnally wants to research "inexpensive means" to implement recreation—possibly by establishing a sled hill in the community and by researching the possibility of establishing bike paths along roadways.

She also would like to attempt to establish some sort of area in the community where motorcycle riders can run their bikes without disturbing the public.

"I have an understanding of the problems of the young adult," she explained. "IT'S TRAGIC that the kids have to hang out in Kennedy Park, because they have nothing to do."

In addition, Mrs. McAnally feels responsible to the senior citizens in the city.

"Senior citizens work all their lives for what they have—and then the government drives them away with taxes," she said.

"We should have a law which allows a senior citizen to stay on a family homestead, so he can live out his life in peace."

Romulus Democratic Club endorses Troutt team

The entire Troutt team ticket, which includes Richard Butz, chairman of the Romulus Democratic Club, has been endorsed for office by the club. No member of the opposing slate was given the opportunity to speak before the group.

The Democrats endorsed the entire Troutt team slate, along with an incumbent councilman and independent candidate, after each candidate gave a talk on the problems of Romulus and his plans for improving the future of the city.

According to Leonard

Folmar, incumbent city clerk, none of the members of the IQ slate, which is opposing the Troutt team, was invited to speak before the organization.

Receiving the endorsements from the Democrats were—Terry L. Troutt, former Democratic township supervisor and Democratic state senator, who is seeking the office of mayor, Gary Bingham, clerk candidate, and John B. Lewkowicz, treasurer candidate. In addition council candidates Joan A. Lee, Butz, Jack Trumble, Ling Coleman and Robert H. Martin, all of the Troutt team, and incumbent councilman Edmund Bizek, Jr., and newcomer Robert Plank received endorsements from the group.

Following the endorsement, the Troutt team officially kicked off its campaign during a kick-off rally at the Romulus Progressive Hall. According to Troutt, more than 700 residents attended the rally.

Vincent Pettipren, chairman of the 15th Congressional District Democrats, was the master of ceremonies. He said: "We are fortunate to have the opportunity to back the Terry Troutt team for the 'Rebirth of Romulus.'"

Testimony reveals 'unstable' atmosphere

By TOM OCHILTREE
Washington Bureau Chief

WASHINGTON—If the testimony of former White House Counsel John W. Dean III is to be believed, one of the most startling single aspects of the Watergate affair is the unstable emotional atmosphere which prevailed until recently in President Nixon's White House.

In the end this revelation—once it sinks in with the public at large—could be harder for the President to overcome than the more legalistic question of whether Nixon personally was involved in efforts to cover up the Watergate scandal.

During his long droning testimony before the Select Senate Committee Dean drew a picture of a White House in the grip of a siege mentality. Members of the White House staff reinforced each other's irrational fears.

HOWEVER, IN WEIGHING Dean's testimony the public should keep two things in mind. First, he is fighting to save his own skin. And second, the national reaction to the hugger-mugger stuff he said originated in the White House undoubtedly would have been altogether different if the administration's various intelligence operations actually had turned up a firm connection between radical leaders of the anti-war movement and a foreign government.

'It seems impossible that he could have made it up out of whole cloth. He presented too much detail.'

In describing the atmosphere that prevailed in the White House, Dean stopped short of using the word "paranoia". The point he was trying to make was clear, nevertheless.

He told the senate committee that after joining the White House staff in July, 1970 he found "a climate of excessive concern over the political impact of demonstrators, excessive concern over leaks, an insatiable appetite for political intelligence, all coupled with a do-it-yourself White House staff, regardless of law".

Such an odd psychological climate, Dean said, lead inevitably to the break-in at the Democratic National Headquarters in the Watergate apartment complex. Then, once the Watergate affair was exposed, Dean said, the cover-up became a "way of life" in the White House.

While the general tone of Dean's testimony was self-serving, it seems impossible that he could have made it up out of whole cloth. He presented too much detail.

Dean suggested that the President's aides even operated a sort of Potemkin Village scheme to prevent Nixon from getting upset at the sight of long haired demonstrators protesting the nation's war policy in Southeast Asia.

RUSSIAN STATESMAN Grigori A. Potemkin had impressive false villages built along the route Catherine the Great was travelling so the empress would think everything was sweetness and light in her gloomy land.

After recounting how a group of demonstrators annoyed the President during a 1971 trip to Akron, Dean said:

"It was after observing that incident that I talked with several individuals in charge of advancing presidential visits, that I learned a major part of any presidential trip advance operation was insuring that demonstrators were unseen and unheard by the President."

Future historians may find it odd that the White House was so neurotically preoccupied with surveillance at a time when the Nixon Administration seemed to have weathered the worst of the anti-war demonstrations in 1969 and 1970.

By the spring and summer of 1972 the protesting groups themselves had become convinced that their street demonstrations were annoying more and more ordinary citizens and thus were counter-productive in that they played into Nixon's hands.

Yet, the over reaction at the White House can only make sense if the administration actually believed that the stability of American society was being threatened by menacing revolutionary forces.

Symbol of freedom

Independence Day

For many Americans, there is no more stirring sight than that of the Statue of Liberty silhouetted against the sky — a tall, proud embodiment of freedom's spirit. As another Independence Day, July 4, approaches, she stands as a silent reminder of the freedoms so many have fought and died for.

Celebrations commemorating the signing of the Declaration of Independence on July 4, 1776 will take several forms — under the vigilant eye of that symbol of freedom — parades, picnics, colorful fireworks and flags festooning millions of offices and homes.

However, the most important part will be hidden from her view. That is the quiet determination which every American should carry in his heart to perpetuate the ideals of liberty, justice and freedom which were built so painstakingly years ago.

Those ideals are the best secret weapon against tyranny and, indeed, are the very basis for the might of the United States. They must always be guarded carefully as the precious possession they are.

Whether you observe the independence of our nation by taking off to the beach, an area park, a backyard picnic — or to Tiger Stadium for a holiday game, do so with the knowledge that the cost of freedom does not come easy.

The capture of Col. Odell, recreated in this sketch by Bob Russell, Macomb Daily Art Director.

"...Voices were shouting at me in Vietnamese. Two of the group carried rifles with bayonets...Others in the group of peasants carried clubs and some had bamboo spears. Their faces... reflected an ugly hatred that dispelled any notion of resistance. I raised my hands above my head in a gesture of surrender."

Bombing mission ends in rice paddy capture

Col. Odell tells his story-part 2

Copyright 1973 by The Macomb Daily

Sitting in that hut, naked except for my shorts, my battered body slowly getting its second wind and my mind bracing itself for what was to come, I found it difficult to believe that only this morning I had eaten a hearty breakfast with my fellow squadron pilots in preparation for my 17th combat mission.

We had then gathered for a dawn briefing on the strike mission against the Dep Cau railyards 18 miles northeast of Hanoi. My chart, mapping and radio frequency coordination completed the previous night, I had written Shirley skimpy details of the mission and ended the letter with the optimistic observation that I had only 83 combat flights left to go on my 100-mission schedule before returning home.

As it turned out, I was too optimistic and that letter home was to be my last for some time.

Hand of fate

Prior to takeoff on the morning I was captured, two things happened which almost scrubbed the mission for me, and I can't help wondering if what fate had in store for me this day would have turned out differently had it been another time and another place.

First, our weather information indicated heavy cloud cover over the target and a temporary "hold" was put on the mission until the weather cleared or it was cancelled.

However, at 6 a.m. we were told the mission was on and takeoff time had been changed to 8:30 a.m. When I arrived at my aircraft for preflight checking, I started the engine but was immediately advised by my crew chief at 8:20 a.m. of a severe hydraulic leak in the nose gear and we shut the engine down.

Joins mission

Precisely at 8:30 a.m. the strike force took off without me as the repair crew worked on my plane's hydraulic system. The malfunction was finally corrected and I took off at 8:52 a.m. to join my flight. I caught up with the squadron shortly after passing the coastline of South Vietnam and we made rendezvous with our air refueling tankers. I advised the flight commander, Lt. Col. Dwight E. Sullivan of Iowa, that my plane was operational, requested permission to rejoin the flight and upon an affirmative reply assumed my position in the formation as wing man to the flight leader.

The cloudiness of early morning had given way to bright sunshine as we proceeded up the coast of North Vietnam, at an altitude of approximately 12,000 feet.

Below us, the lush, green countryside stretched to the horizon, laced here and there with roads, criss-crossed with rice paddy dikes and dotted with clearings in which nestled towns, smaller villages and tiny hamlets. It was then 10:20 a.m. and upon the flight commander's order of "Green Up" I flicked the switch which armed my plane's bomb and guns.

Seemed peaceful

As we turned inland, the powerful thrust of the aircraft engine droned steadily and reassuringly. I scanned the sky above and to my left. All seemed peaceful and friendly but I couldn't help wondering how many guns were pointed at us...how many missiles would soar our way...and whether we would run into a squadron of MIG's (Russian-made fighters).

I reached for the thermos of cold water behind my head, placed the rubber tube in my mouth and took a long drink. This was routine procedure on a strike mission. A pilot needed all the water he could take because of perspiration from the cockpit heat and sun, the natural apprehension prior to combat and, in the unlikely event (it always happened to the other guy, right?) that he was downed by an enemy rocket he'd be in better condition to survive.

Thus fortified, I again looked at the skies. We were minutes away from target and my apprehension grew.

I anticipated that all hell would break loose at any moment. It did.

Target in sight

I glanced at my instrument panel clock. It was 10:45 a.m. Target strike time was 10:50. Five minutes more. At 10:48 the flight commander radioed: "I have target in sight." We kicked on our afterburners for the power thrust to target. There was a surge and my plane nosed up into the clear, blue sky. As the flight commander began his roll-in for the target approach, I had to cross under him and take a position on his port (left) wing.

But as I completed the roll, dropping the aircraft nose toward the ground, I felt a slight thud at the belly of the plane.

Immediately, warning lights flashed on and other lights blinked, indicating failures in the plane's electrical and mechanical systems.

I realized I had taken a hit and that my plane was on fire.

Intense smoke

By this time the aircraft had banked steeply toward the ground and I fought for control. Smoke began filling the cockpit and I flicked on the switch to clear the air as the plane continued its wild gyrations.

I glanced quickly out the canopy and saw the plane on my left rolling in toward me on a collision course. I watched as he zoomed under me and followed his path as he hurtled by me on the other side. On my left, I detected an orange fireball and my immediate thought was that a SAM (surface-to-air missile) had exploded next to me.

Later, in prison camp, I was to learn the orange fireball was the result of Col. Sullivan's plane colliding with mine, which had been gyrating so wildly, I didn't even notice the impact. As told to me by the No. 4 pilot in prison camp 2½ years later, the wild tumbling of my plane caused it to break in half just behind the cockpit. The No. 4 pilot was shot down as he was pulling off target. In fact, three of the pilots in our four-plane flight were downed and became prisoners of war.

Downward plunge

My stricken plane continued its downward plunge. By this time I had lost about half of my original 12,000-foot altitude and the tumbling of the plane had somehow jarred loose the seat belt, throwing me halfway out of the seat and into the top of the canopy. I then began a desperate struggle to get back into proper seating position for the ejection because otherwise the powerful charge which explodes the pilot and seat out of the plane could cause injury to neck and back or broken limbs.

I managed to pull myself down, leaned to the right to reach the ejection handle, got my head as far back as possible and pulled the red lever, triggering the explosive charge that hurtled me beyond the plane a second after the canopy had been blown away.

A moment later my parachute blossomed above me and I began floating gently to the green earth below me. A quick inspection revealed no outward injuries. I looked around and saw the plane from which I had just bailed out falling toward earth, a mass of flames. I did not see the impact. I caught sight of another parachute floating downward approximately a mile north of me and slightly higher. Later, I was to learn it was Col. Sullivan, the flight leader whose plane had collided with mine after I was hit.

I then concentrated on my own situation. My joy at coming out of that scrape without injuries was dispelled by the disheartening realization that I was about to land in enemy territory. Below me, the countryside had a fresh, green look and I could make out the patches of rice paddies under water and a winding river to the east of me.

Signing off

But now, as my parachute brought me swaying closer to the ground, I had things to do. I deployed the survival kit and the raft on the lanyard attached to my flight suit belt. The time was 11 a.m., just 10 minutes from the moment my plane took the rocket hit. I swayed toward the edge of a rice paddy. I saw groups of peasants running toward the spot. I slipped the chute and landed on top of the dike surrounding the paddy. Touchdown was good, with a minimum of impact. I had no trouble collapsing and unstrapping the chute. I opened my back packet and shut off the emergency radio which had been automatically engaged by the ejection to send out beeps on the rescue frequency. I then took the small transmitter radio out of my survival vest and reported to whatever aircraft could pick up my signals that I was on the ground, had suffered no injuries and my capture was imminent. Then I signed off something like this:

"Good luck, guys, see you after the war." Voices were now shouting at me in Vietnamese. Two of the group carried rifles with bayonets. I assumed they were civilian militia. Others in the group of peasants carried clubs and some had bamboo spears. Their faces, as they neared me, reflected an ugly hatred that immediately dispelled any notion of resistance.

I raised my hands above my head in a gesture of surrender. My pistol was still holstered. I was in a non-rescue area and any move toward the pistol, I figured, would end in only one way...my being shot or clubbed to death there on that earthen dike surrounding a rice paddy in North Vietnam.

The first North Vietnamese to reach me grabbed my ring, watch and cigarette lighter. Then he and the others tried to remove my flying suit, survival gear and boots. While they were doing this, another group of shouting peasants arrived.

Stars and pain

Among them was an old man of about 70, I guessed, who carried a pole about six feet long and a good three inches in diameter. He moved out of my line of vision to the left and the next thing I detected was a blur of movement, then an explosion of stars and pain as the pole cracked into my head. Barely conscious, I sank down gasping and almost retching. A moment later I was jerked back to my feet and the pulling and tugging at my flying gear continued.

Again there was a stunning blow to my head as the old man swiped at me a second time with that pole. I sank down to the ground once more and again I was jerked upright by clawing hands. Apparently the process of tearing away my clothing was too slow because some of the villagers began cutting it away with knives. They were none too gentle.

My attention diverted a moment by the clawing hands, I noticed out of the corner of my eyes a flash of movement to my right and I jumped back and threw up my hand to defend myself, anticipating another crushing blow with a pole. But this time it was a machete-like weapon that struck me a glancing blow across the base of my right thumb, inflicting a deep cut which began spurting blood. This seemed to create more confusion among the villagers who began pressing forward. My unseen attacker was pushed away by the militia, who then hurriedly tied my hands tightly behind my back. By this time I had been stripped to my shorts and, bare-footed, they made me run to the village's cluster of huts about 300 yards away, the crowd following us.

Blindfolded

In the village I was placed in a thatch-roof hut from which, about an hour later, I was removed, blindfolded, and boosted on to a truck and taken to another village about five miles away where I was placed in another thatched hut much larger than the last. My blindfold was removed and I observed through the wall openings a rather large village which I assumed was that of the district chief.

As the day progressed, I was periodically taken out on a veranda by guards and displayed to the villagers who, by now, were congregating from all directions as, I assume, word spread that an American pilot had been captured.

On one of these occasions I was taken out before a heavy-set man who appeared more Chinese than Vietnamese and wore a neat military-type uniform without insignia. My hands were untied and he indicated that I was to kneel before him and place my hands above my head. Then he pointed a camera at me, waiting. I refused to kneel. He made several more gestures for me to get down on my knees. I continued to refuse. This made him mad and he started to gesture more and talk louder, a behavior which spread to the villagers around me. I started tensing for expected blows.

But they didn't come. A heavy-set man of about 50, carrying a very large machine gun, gestured to the cameraman that he would have to take my picture as I stood there. After two or three clicks of the shutter I was led back into the hut and the doors were again locked.

Pangs of thirst

Back inside the hut, as the afternoon turned into early evening, I began feeling the pangs of thirst. The last water I had tasted was just before my plane took the rocket hit. Strangely, although I hadn't eaten since that early breakfast prior to mission takeoff, I didn't feel hungry at all.

Then there began some animated conversation between my four militia guards and the man with the machine gun. The militiamen took me out and the man with the machine gun disappeared. (I was to meet him a few minutes later on that path to the road.)

As I left the hut, I saw I was being taken to the edge of the village toward the path where the villagers were lined up on both sides, awaiting my appearance.

For the next few minutes, my resistance to pain and terror was to be sorely tried.

Towing trailers?

The surge in recreation and motoring vacations has made trailer-towing a part-time way of life for millions of motorists.

When pulling a trailer, it's important to have the proper equipment and to observe all the vehicle and trailer-loading recommendations, according to Joseph E. Cappy, Ford Division recreation products sales manager.

"The importance of cars and trucks as tow vehicles is increasing with the growth of the recreation industry, and towing options are becoming more popular each year," he said.

MR. CAPPY noted several things to remember before towing any kind of trailer:

1. Weigh your trailer fully loaded. This will determine what class it falls into and tell you what types of tow vehicle and towing equipment are needed. Remember that trailers over 1,500 pounds should have separate brakes. 2. Select a proper hitch. Ford recommends frame hitches only. A nonequalizing hitch is satisfactory for trailer under 2,000 pounds, but weight-distributing frame hitches are required for heavier trailers.

3. Don't overload your trailer and distribute the load evenly. Too much weight in the rear will cause the trailer to sway. Too much in front will put more weight on the hitch and will raise the front of the car, throwing the headlights out of line.

4. BEFORE YOU start on a trip, be sure to double-check every connection such as brakes, safety chains and wiring harness. Drive a few hundred feet and check the brakes. Always check your trailer every time you stop, paying special attention to hitch, safety chain, lights and wheel lugs.

5. Be sure you have the proper accessory equipment on hand. You should have wheel chocks, extended mirrors, flares, fire extinguishers, strong rope or chain, spare trailer tire, hydraulic jack, extra wire connectors and a leveling gauge.

6. Be sure to have your car or truck properly equipped to tow a trailer. Ford Division offers several trailer-towing packages depending on the class of trailer to be towed.

County commissioners endorse off-track horse race betting

The Wayne County Board of Commissioners has endorsed bills before the state legislature which would provide bonus payments to Vietnam veterans and authorize off-track betting on horse races.

The commissioners voted in support of four separate House bills at a recent meeting of their full board.

The bill allowing parimutuel wagers passed the House last week 58-to-45 and is now before the Senate.

IF ENACTED the bill would enable county boards of commissioners to establish a network of para-mutuel betting agencies and apply the revenue toward community colleges and the local intermediate school district, as well as other county needs.

Rep. George Montgomery (D-Detroit) sponsor of the bill, estimates a $12.5 million per month income, of which 15.5 per cent would be divided among the county, state and the tracks.

In other action the board increased the rates paid for the care of children who are county wards that live in institutions, private agencies and county boarding homes.

Upon recommendation of its Human Resources Committee the board granted an increase of $1.50 per day per child for institutional care, and raised rates 75 cents per day per child for foster home care.

ALSO APPROVED was a grant agreement for nearly $2 million of federal funds for development at the Detroit-Wayne County Metropolitan Airport.

Metro Baptist Temple opens services soon

A new church is being organized in Belleville called the Metro Baptist Temple, located at 894 East Huron River Drive, one mile east of the Belleville shopping district.

Pastor John Vaprezen has recently moved from Hammond, Ind., to this area to start this church. He is a former deacon, Sunday School teacher and youth worker of the First Baptist Church there. He graduated from Bob Jones University, Greenville, S.C. and Hyles-Anderson College, Schererville, Ind.

Vaprezen described the church as an independent, fundamental church, with its main goal being the winning of people to Jesus Christ.

Services will begin at 10:45 a.m. Sunday, July 15th, with Sunday school at 9:45 a.m. All interested people are urged to attend. For more information, call 697-4065.

A REQUEST to apply for other federal funds to continue the Child Care Coordinating Council Program also was approved by the board. Total cost of the program for the coming year is $67,000 of which $45,000 will be federal money.

The county will supply the tributions, meaning personnel, equipment and office facilities.

Three temporary positions also were established by the board to provide more security in Common Pleas Court. The jobs will be staffed by sheriff's deputies and are classified temporary pending resolution of questions of legal obligation between the City of Detroit and Wayne County.

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE

Tomorrow's Forecast from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A fine day and evening to put your most attractive articles and accessories in the pink of condition. Look at your clothing, furnishings and up-date them so they shine and are in good condition for the days ahead. Also a very good time to study a new and a better diet by which you can have health.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You have many chances to advance now, but first be sure you show allies and co-workers that you will cooperate with them. During spare time be sure to take exercise that will improve your vitality.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Get into the recreations that are most appealing during spare time, and show others how much you like them. Plan that party that will bring you much popularity, goodwill. Avoid one who bickers.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Take the time to make conditions at home more ideal so you and immediate family will be happier there. Make plans to start an uptrend for the future. Avoid one who brings you nothing but trouble.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Set up appointments early for whatever your best purposes are, information you need; become more knowledgeable. Show more wisdom in shopping and get your affairs in better order. Steer clear of trouble.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Think out how to make more money so that you can keep up with expenses and soaring prices. Plan your budget better also so that it is more workable, easier to follow. Take no chances with those who are not dependable.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Get together with those you really like and make better plans for the future with them. Attend meetings that are fascinating and make new and interesting friends. Make sure you pay your bills early.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get together quietly with persons who can help you get what you need the most. Then carry through with care. The evening can be particularly charming with mate who is in a romantic mood.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You need the aid of good pals in order to gain whatever is uppermost on your mind now, so seek them out early. Know what it is you want of a personal character and go after it with vim and vitality. Have fun tonight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Some public work you handle well now could bring you the added prestige you want and be most helpful to others as well. Improve your image via constructive work. Show you are most creative.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You have to study more if you are to extend your interests far beyond their present boundaries. Sit down with some higher-up who has fine ideas and suggestions. Show due respect and all goes well.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get to work early on business matters so you can satisfy both debtors and creditors later in the day. A kind word to attachment brings the favors you want. Show you have a fine sense of humor. Avoid obnoxious individuals.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Find out what it is that associates expect of you and if you back them loyally, much good can come of this. Do whatever civic duty will bring you more esteem. Avoid one who has a chip-on-the-shoulder attitude.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those clever young people who can carry through effectively with whatever is once started so slant the education along such lines that require perfection of detail while keeping focused on the big issues as well. Teach early to be kind to others instead of adopting a superior air that will be resented by them, cut down on the success possible here, otherwise. Teach early to get out of that tendency to daydream too much.

WATER CARNIVAL — One of the many attractions enjoyed recently by participants of Van Buren Township Recreation Department's three-day camping trip was a water carnival.

Some of the 46 youngsters that participated in the events at Camp DeSales at Vineyard Lake near Brooklyn, Mich. are shown on the lake.

CAMP VOLUNTEERS — Van Buren Township Recreation Department recently sponsored its first summer program (a pilot project) at Camp DeSales, Vineyard Lake, near Brooklyn, Mich. Forty-six youngsters participated in the camp program under the supervision of the following

Highest waterfall attracts tourists

Michigan's many tourist attractions include the highest waterfall east of the Mississippi River except Niagara.

The distinction belongs to Tahquamenon Falls, near Newberry, about 65 miles west of Sault Ste. Marie.

As if one weren't enough, nature provided two sets of Tahquamenon Falls—the Upper and Lower—about four miles apart on the Tahquamenon River. The most spectacular, the Upper, is 40 feet high and 200 feet across at the crest. The Lower Falls, considered by some more beautiful than the Upper, is divided by an island and is a series of rapids and cascades.

BOTH ARE within Tahquamenon Falls State Park's 18,906 acres, one of the most popular Upper Peninsula state parks.

The Upper and Lower Tahquamenon top the list of Michigan's 150 waterfalls, all except one of them in the Upper Peninsula.

The Tahquamenon River runs through heavily wooded, partially swampy wilderness country which retains much of its natural beauty. Decaying vegetation of the vast Tahquamenon swamp gives the water a golden cast, a feature immediately noticed and admired by visitors.

The Upper and Lower Falls, the "rushing Tahquamenon," are the setting of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow's epic poem, Hiawatha, the Chipewewa's legendary warrior-hero.

OTHER THAN hiking, there are three ways to reach the Upper Falls. Private automobile and a short walk is one. The other two utilize privately operated riverboats.

One combination is called the Tom Sawyer Riverboat and Paul Bunyan Timber Train. It starts from Slater's Landing, 10 miles north of Hulbert off M-28, by riverboat and continues through the wilderness to the Falls by open air cars pulled by a huge tractor. From July 1 through Labor Day, there are two trips daily, at 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. After Labor Day through Oct. 10 there is one trip daily, at 10:30 a.m.

The other is the Toonerville Trolley and boat trip. Starting at Soo Junction, on M-28 east of Newberry, visitors ride a narrow gauge railroad six miles through thick forest and then board a riverboat for the remainder of the trip. Two trips daily are scheduled weekdays during July and August, at 10 a.m. and 12 noon. On Saturday and Sunday during July and August there is one trip, leaving at 10:30 a.m. From Sept. 1 through Oct. 5, one trip daily leaves at 10:30 a.m.

Either trip goes through the wilderness country. Only from a boat do you get a real close-up of the trackless bush country—spots you couldn't reach except by three or four days of hard hiking. There's a closeness to nature otherwise impossible for the average visitor, with excellent commentaries on both trips.

Far Eastern festival planned for Detroit

Downtown Detroit's ethnic festival site behind Cobo Hall will be transformed into an exotic, colorful showplace for the culture, artifacts and food of the city's far Eastern population the weekend of July 6, 7 and 8.

The free festival, eighth in the summer-long series sponsored by the city, will give visitors a chance to acquaint themselves with the people and products of Japan, China, India, Korea, Pakistan and the Philippines.

Two oriental sports popular in the United States, judo and karate, will be demonstrated on the riverfront stage by experts of all ages.

ANOTHER unique presentation will be a fashion show displaying the native costumes of all six participating nationalities.

Chinese lion and farmer dances, Indian sitar and tabla instrumentals, Japanese enbu dances, Korean spring dances, Pakistani folk songs and dances, Filipino folk dances (subi, tinkling, and Itik-Itik) and Hawaiian dances will be highlights of the free performance schedule.

Festival-goers will be able to sample Oriental foods like sweet and sour spare ribs, pepper steak, fried wonton, sukiyaki, teriyaki, curry, egg rolls and chop suey. Also available will be Indian samosas and gulab jamun (dessert), Japanese namasu (cucumber salad), Korean bulkoki (steak), Pakistani spicy chappie kabob, and Filipino rice cakes.

Hours are 6 to 11 p.m. Friday and noon to 11 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Civic theater to hold auditions for 'Applause'

Dearborn Civic Theater is holding open auditions for its upcoming production of the musical, "Applause." This is the premier staging of "Applause" in our area. Good singers and dancers are being sought.

Auditions will be held at the Henry Ford Centennial Library on Michigan Ave., in Dearborn from 7:30 to 10 on July 11, 12, and 13. July 11th will be tryouts for reading and singing only; July 12th will be reading auditions only and July 13th, will be tryouts for reading, singing and dancing.

Since all dance auditions must be held on Friday night, it would be a good idea to come Wednesday and Thursday for reading and singing auditions.

Callbacks will be on July 15th, from 3 to 6. Play dates are September 14, 15, 21, 22, and 23 at Edsel Ford High School.

For information, call 563-5871.

Romulus Jaycees to hold festival

The Romulus Jaycees will hold their annual festival this weekend at the Romulus Senior High School.

Rained out in late May, the annual festival was scheduled for a dryer time of the year, according to the Jaycees.

This year, "Kids' Day" will be held Saturday from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Two bicycles will be raffled off at 5 p.m. on the day. The Jaycees will serve refreshments throughout the festival this year, including their own special brand of coney island hot dogs.

The Jaycee Auxiliary will operate a "dig for gold" booth during the festival.

Chairman of this year's event is Gordon Silvey, Richard J. Zavadsky is co-chairman.

According to Silvey, all proceeds from the festival will go into community-betterment projects.

Scouts raise funds to go to jamboree

The Boy Scouts of Belleville Troop 793 will be on the job at the Wonder Hostess Thrift Store in the Belleville area on Tuesday from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

The fund-raising activity will include the serving of free coffee and donuts and there will be drawings for a variety of prizes.

Money raised by the troop will go to the troop fund for attending the Boy Scout Jamboree to be held in Pennsylvania in August.

Make your home bug-proof

Elimination of breeding places and destruction of mosquito larvae may not solve the entire mosquito control problem. Adult mosquitoes may attack from breeding places on neighboring property or from stagnant pools left by the flood in other parts of your community. For this reason, you should try to make your home and family as 'bug-proof' as possible:

Make sure door and window screens are tightly fitted. To keep mosquitoes from lighting on screen doors and making a sneak entrance into the house, dip a paint roller in insect repellent and coat screen doors and windows. Drape netting over an infant's crib. Examine house plants in water. Even saucers under potted plants can accumulate enough water for breeding.

BACK TO SCHOOL — Sharlene Tator of Belleville, (seated, left), was among more than 1,000 women from all parts of Michigan who attended College Week for Women at Michigan State University June 18 to 21. College Week, open to all women in the state, is presented annually by the Family Living Education Program of the MSU Cooperative Extension Service. MSU extension specialists, other faculty members and community and professional leaders conducted 30 classes in a wide variety of subjects. Miss Tator received her scholarship from the Michigan State Federation of Women's Clubs. Receiving scholarships from the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association were Georgiana Combs of Trenton (seated, right) from the Trenton branch; and (standing from left) Ruth Ann Turner of Woodhaven, Dearborn Branch; Carol Kaiser of Riverview, Indian Village Branch; and Ruth Lawrence of Trenton, Trenton Branch.

Roddick-Evanski wed

Parents' anniversary chosen for wedding

Gertrude A. Evanski chose her parents' 28th wedding anniversary, May 19, as the date for her marriage to Paul T. Roddick. Married at St. Anthony's Catholic Church in Belleville, the couple later departed for a month-long honeymoon in England, Wales, Scotland, and Paris, France. They are now at home at 14193 F. Drive, Plymouth.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Evanski of Hoeft Road, Belleville, Trudi was escorted to the sanctuary by her father. For her wedding day, she chose a toe-touching creation of imported Chantilly lace designed with a fitted bodice, high collar, keyhole neckline, and leg o'mutton sleeves. Her tiered lace skirt, accented with beading, cascaded into a chapel train as she walked.

Chantilly lace also banded her chapel-length silk illusion veil which was held by a crescent of fresh roses, orange blossoms, stephanotis, miniature carnations, baby's breath and silk forget-me-nots.

The same assortment of blooms was used to fashion the cascade bouquet which completed her bridal finery.

THE REV. Raymond S. Skoney presided at the eleven thirty nuptials at which double ring vows were exchanged. For the occasion the altar was appointed with two large bouquets of mums and gladiolus adorned with rainbow ribbons to match the pew markers and the gowns worn by the bridal coterie.

As her sister's honor attendant, Mrs. Sandra Betsinger of Las Vegas, Nevada appeared in a full-length gown styled with a lilac chiffon skirt over satin and bodice of lilac and white Italian lace over lilac satin. Complimenting her dress was a shoulder-length veil caught to a headdress of fresh lilac carnations, pink roses, baby's breath and silk forget-me-nots. Her bouquet was comprised of matching flowers.

Bridesmaids in identical ensembles were Deborah and Doretta Evanski, the bride's sisters, who wore mint green; Bonnie Kzremenski of New Boston and Connie Snyder of Cincinnati, Ohio, the bride's cousins, in frosty pink; and Diane Morse of Westland, the bridegroom's cousin, and Patricia Evanski, the bride's sister, in sky blue.

THE TWO FLOWERGIRLS were outfitted in little yellow frocks and carried baskets of spring flowers interspersed with baby's breath and ivy. Michelle Roddick, the bridegroom's five-year old cousin from North Palm Beach, Florida, and Shannon Evanski, the bride's niece from Rockwood, represented the younger set at the wedding.

Other junior attendants were two of the bride's brothers, Charles and Gerard Evanski, who served both as escorts for the flowergirls and as altar boys during mass.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Roddick of 32317 Birchwood, Westland, asked his close friend, Lloyd Gilmore McClure, to be best man. The corps of ushers included Daniel Evanski of Ypsilanti, the bride's brother; Raymond and Bruce Paterson of Livonia; Dick Evans of Dearborn; and Robert Ackron and Steven Evanski of Belleville, the bride's cousin and brother, respectively.

FOR HER daughter's wedding, Mrs. Evanski wore a street-length dress with a pink lace bodice and pleated skirt. For the evening reception, she changed to a formal A-line apricot gown trimmed with rhinestones.

Mrs. Roddick chose for the ceremony a two-piece beige ensemble with brown braid trim. In the evening she appeared in a floor-length green gown. Both mothers were presented with corsages of gardenias, carnations and roses to match their dresses.

The wedding breakfast which followed at Local 735 was attended by 175 guests including relatives from Derby, England, Mrs. Donald Nanson and son, Peter, and Mr. and Mrs. Austin Young and daughters, Lynn and Jane. The 450 attending the evening reception were from Florida, Illinois, Missouri, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Nevada, Toronto, Ontario, and Peru.

THE BRIDE graduated from Cleary College June 16 with an associate's degree in business administration. She is employed as a legal secretary in Plymouth at Brender-Hamill and Associates, Inc. Her husband, a senior at Lawrence Institute of Technology in Southfield, will graduate next year with a bachelor of architecture degree. He is affiliated with Norman Dietrich and Associates, Inc., Plymouth.

Following rehearsal the evening before the wedding, the bridegroom's parents entertained at an outdoor barbecue which included the wedding party as well as several guests from abroad and from out of state.

Kitchen safety tips for the busy mother

The kitchen is a warm and friendly area of the home — filled with the good smell of freshly baked cake, the aroma of hot coffee and exotic spices, the sound of sizzling steaks and French fries. It's a happy gathering place for family and friends. And, for a small child, the sights and sounds and smells of food preparation make the kitchen the most fascinating room in the entire house.

But the kitchen also can be the most dangerous room in the house for a curious toddler — especially if there are electric cords that can be put into the mouth, open outlets within reach, or appliances that can be pulled down from cabinet counter or table tops. The child who can reach the top of a range also may be able to spill a pan of boiling water or scalding-hot grease over his body. Below counter-top level, there could be such hazards as toxic household chemicals and hot water pipes under the sink, cabinet drawers filled with sharp knives, or an oven hot enough to broil meat. In fact, most kitchens simply are not designed with small children in mind.

BUT FOR THE BUSY homemaker who can't keep her eye on a curious child every second, here are some safety suggestions from the Coffee Information Institute:

1. Be sure that any electric outlets below counter-top level are covered or concealed. And don't allow electric cords to hang below the counter or table top.

2. Do not store sharp instruments, such as knives, or dangerous chemicals where small children can reach them.

3. Never allow the handles of the pots or pans to extend over the edge of a kitchen range; keep them turned toward the rear or side of the stove. And when buying a kitchen range, make sure the heating units and controls are beyond the reach of small children.

4. Keep children away from kitchen areas that may be especially hazardous during meal preparation; a child playing on the floor beside a kitchen range is much more likely to be burned by any hot liquids that may be spilled.

5. When pouring hot liquids, always pour away from yourself; and pour very slowly. Instant coffees and soup mixes tend to effervesce when boiling water is poured too quickly.

6. Choose coffee cups or mugs that are designed so they will not tip easily. Some of the modern stemmed cups are attractive but tend to be "top heavy" so they are more likely to tip over and spill the contents.

7. When placing containers of hot foods or hot liquids on a table, put them as close to the center of the table as possible — or well away from the edge of the table. Also, when small children are likely to be around, use place mats rather than a table cloth that can be pulled off the table along with containers of hot foods. And don't use lighted candles on the table when children are present.

8. Help make your kitchen accident-proof by adopting the perspective of a small child. Remember that a child may not be tall enough to see that a pot on the stove or a bowl on the table contains hot food. Also, if the child is allowed to play with pots and pans, he may think of the food containers on the kitchen range as his toys. If he sips fluids occasionally from an adult's cup, he may assume that the cup on the table is for his use.

9. Resist the temptation to hold a child in your arms while enjoying a cup of any hot beverage. A frisky child can knock the cup out of your hand in a fraction of a second. Put the youngster in his playpen, high-chair, or some other safe place during your coffee break.

10. Finally, be sure you know what to do if an accident occurs in the kitchen despite your precautions. In case of burns, for example, the proper emergency treatment is to apply ice or cold water to the burn area.

Pat Brake is bride

Rainbow theme used for June ceremony

In an early June ceremony at St. Anthony's Catholic Church, Patricia Louise Brake became the bride of Gregory Allen Jamison. The Rev. Raymond Skonek presided at the five o'clock nuptials which united the daughter of the William M. Brakes of 2257 Rawsonville Road, Belleville, and the son of Dee Jamison of 41021 Michigan Avenue, Wayne, and Mrs. Alma Jamison of 16520 Sumpter Road, Belleville.

Both young people are 1972 graduates of Belleville High School, the bridegroom having attended St. John's Catholic School through the 10th grade. Following a four day honeymoon at Lewistown, Michigan, the newlyweds took up residence at 202 Knollwood Drive, Belleville.

Two large arrangements of assorted flowers graced the altar as Pat approached with her father. She chose for her wedding day a gown of Chantilly lace over satin fashioned with a Sabrina neckline and long tapered sleeves on the little fitted bodice. Her bouffant skirt, comprised of tiers of lace, cascaded into a chapel train.

Seed pearls and sequins accented the lace and satin headpiece which secured her fingertip illusion veil and a circular bouquet of white carnations and white orchids completed her ensemble.

MR. and MRS. GREGORY A. JAMISON

RAINBOW COLORS were chosen for the bride's five attendants: Debra Sewjick of Belleville, the maid of honor; and Vera Brake and Brenda Jamison, sisters of the bride; Susan Date of Detroit, the bride's cousin; and Sue Ann Bias of Romulus.

Identically fashioned, their gowns in lavender, pink, blue, yellow and green were of sheer nylon over taffeta with fitted bodices, scooped necklines, short sleeves, and full, bustled hooped skirts.

Each girl wore a white picture hat encircled with ribbon to match her gown and carried a large white orchid and a dozen miniature carnations.

Five-year old twins, Marilyn and Carolyn Walters, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Walters of Belleville and cousins of the bridegroom, appeared as flowergirls. Their frocks, one in blue and the other in yellow, were miniatures of the senior attendants' dresses. The white baskets they carried were filled with matching daisies.

The third flowergirl was Diana Baxter, the bride's five-year old cousin. The daughter of Mrs. Barbara Baxter of Taylor, she donned a little pink outfit to match the other girls.

OTHER YOUNGSTERS in the bridal party were William Brake, seven, and Michael Brake, five, brothers of the bride who served as train bearers, and four-year old Eric Kreinbring, son of the Allen Kreinbrings of Belleville, who was ringbearer.

Dan Crawford of Ypsilanti, the bridegroom's close friend since childhood, assumed the duties of best man. Others on the esquire side were Logan Vaughn of Prestonsburg, Kentucky, cousin of the bridegroom; David Bickler of Omaha, Nebraska, cousin of the bride; Kevin Crawford of Ypsilanti, another childhood friend; and William Bias of Romulus.

At the reception, which followed in the P.N.A. Lodge, Mrs. Brake greeted the 450 guests in an off-white formal gown designed with an A-line skirt while the bridegroom's mother chose to wear a pale green floral print gown, also in the A-line mode. Both were presented with white orchid corsages.

Special guests at the wedding and reception were bride's grandmothers, Mrs. Nellie Buchholz of Taylor and Mrs. Vera Brake of Detroit; and her 77-year old great-grandmother, Mrs. Georgianna Ostrowski of Belleville; and the bridegroom's grandfathers, Revie Jamison and Wallace Pegouskie.

OTHER GUESTS were from neighboring cities as well as from Bluffton, Decatur, Fort Wayne, and Monroe, Indiana; Prestonsburg, Kentucky; and Omaha, Nebraska.

The bridegroom's mother hosted the rehearsal dinner which was held at the home of other brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Walters of W. Huron River Drive.

Tennessee church chosen for vows

Calvary Baptist Church in Tullahoma, Tennessee was the setting for the recent spring wedding of Susan Kay Satterlee and Mitchell Gregory Tucker, both of Romulus. Held in the bridegroom's former home town, the wedding ceremony was conducted by his cousin, the Rev. Cecil Tucker.

The single ring nuptials united the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E.J. Satterlee of 28140 Ecorse Road, Romulus, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Tucker of 37637 Castle Drive, Romulus.

Mrs. Keith Jarvis, cousin of the bridegroom, provided traditional music for the occasion with an uncle of the bridegroom, James Jarvis of Tullahoma, giving the bride in marriage.

FOR HER WEDDING, Susan chose a floor-length creation of dotted swiss styled with long, cuffed sleeves and a V-neckline. She wore fresh flowers in her hair and carried an arrangement of daisies and baby's breath.

Theresa Tucker of Tullahoma, a cousin of the bridegroom, was the bride's only attendant. Her pink linen frock was fashioned in toe-touching length with long sleeves and her bouquet was comprised of daisies and four pink roses.

The bridegroom's brother-in-law, Tilton Stubblefield of Tullahoma, carried out the duties of best man. He and his wife later entertained some 25 guests at the wedding reception in their Roosevelt Street home.

The newlyweds are now making their home in Romulus.

Hi there, Heather!

Heather Michelle is the name chosen by Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Welch of 37500 Castle Drive, Romulus, for their new daughter born June 20 at Beyer Hospital. Making her debut at 6 lbs., 3 oz., the baby is the couple's first child.

Her proud grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Final Sr. of Ferndale and Romulus; Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Welch and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dennis.

The new mother is the former Deborah Final.

MR. and MRS. JAMES P. SUTHERLAND SR.

Sutherlands mark 65th anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. James P. Sutherland Sr. of Belleville, who were married June 20, 1908, celebrated their 65th wedding anniversary Saturday, June 30. The party, held at the home of their grandson, Kenneth B. Carnahan of Lenmore Drive, Belleville, was hosted by their children: William B. Sutherland, Mrs. Dorothy B. Forman, Mrs. F. Mildred McQuaid, and Mrs. Mabel L. Russ, all of Belleville, and James P. Sutherland Jr. of Ypsilanti.

Mr. Sutherland was born in 1887 in Coshocton County, Ohio and moved with his parents at the age of two to Washington, Indiana where he met and married his childhood sweetheart, Della M. Dayton.

BECAUSE WAGES were only 50 cents a day in his area, he was prompted to travel to Bakersfield, California to try his luck during the oil boom. After a short time, he returned to Indiana to run the family dairy and fruit business.

In 1934, the Sutherland family moved to Belleville. Mr. Sutherland worked for the Willow Run Airport until his retirement at the age of 72. Since then he and his wife have spent their winters (13 in all) in Palmetto, Florida and now have friends settled all over the country.

Their family tree includes their five living children; a daughter, Virginia, who is deceased; 14 grandchildren and 32 great-grandchildren.

The Sutherlands are charter members of Bethany Baptist Church of Belleville. Of his life, Mr. Sutherland says, "As I look back, it was pretty dark at times but the Lord has been good to us. My advice to all would be to get right with your Maker and start praying for your neighbor. If we don't, our good old U.S.A. is going to disappear."

New standards have your safety in mind

The Food and Drug Administration, enforcing standards established under the Poison Prevention Packaging Act, now requires closures that resist opening by children under five years of age for a wide range of anti-freezes, drain and oven cleaners, paint thinners, and solvents. The new regulation, effective April 4, 1973, includes any products containing 10 per cent or more liquid turpentine, four per cent or more methyl (wood) alcohol, 10 per cent or more dry sodium or potassium hydroxide. Aerosol and paste oven cleaners, which contain sodium or potassium hydroxide, must comply with the standard by July 2, 1973.

Children's sleepwear in sizes 0-6X not meeting federal flammability standards will be banned from the market after July 29, 1973. Until that date, the Commerce Department requires garments not passing a flame-retardancy test to carry a warning label. The Commerce Department also has proposed that similar restrictions be extended for sleepwear sizes 7-14.

As of August 1, 1973, knife probe requirements will be added to the Underwriters Lab Standard for dishwashers, requiring that manufacturers design their products in such a way that, should a child insert a knife or similar object through an opening in the dishwasher, he will be protected from electric shock.

A few tips for writing legislators

Thinking of getting a letter off to your senator or congressman? Whether it be to criticize or praise, Thomas C. Desmond, former New York State Senator, offers some tips to aid you in your letter. His advice appeared in 'Wanted: Your Voice in Government,' National Business Woman, October, 1972.

—Use your personal stationery or business letterhead, and be sure the letter, including your signature, is neat and legible.

—Do not use form letters.

—Try to restrict your letters to a single subject at a time.

—State clearly and briefly why you are writing. If a bill is involved, identify it by number as well as subject matter. Explain your personal views and how a measure will affect you, your family, business or community.

—Add a personal touch whenever you can. If you have met the representative or heard him speak, mention the place and occasion.

—Don't threaten to withdraw your support if he doesn't do your bidding. That smacks of duress. Don't promise support if he does follow your advice. That suggests bribery. Individualize your thoughts so they will be your own.

—Let your representative know if he does something you like. Constituents are quick with criticism but stingy with praise. A letter of appreciation will be remembered, especially because there are so few of them.

Quintet heads for Centennial

OELWEIN, IOWA's centennial celebration prompted the recent four-day trip taken by the Arthur Shephards and son, Brian, of Elwell Road, and Jim and Pat Shephard of Maple Drive. The spur-of-the-moment decision to go resulted in an unexpected mini-family reunion with the clan (and friends) coming in from Escanaba, Michigan; Madison, Wisconsin; and Sumner, Waterloo and Webster City, Iowa.

Mrs. Shephard's (Verdys') hometown, Oelwein is located in farming country in the north-east part of the state and is noted largely for its railroad shops. Her father, the late Edward Jahncke, worked in the car building operation under Walter P. Chrysler who chalked up most of his mechanical experience there while experimenting with a car he'd purchased in Chicago - the results of his work being the Chrysler Corporation.

While away, the visitors were the houseguests of Dale and Dorothy Verdys' cousins, and Saturday and Sunday they all took part in the centennial festivities.

Included on their schedule were a two-hour parade in 90-degree weather, plane rides, tractor pulling contests, tours of the railroad shops, picnics, German band concerts, beard judging, steam engine rides, and old fiddler and canoe contests. "Sunday in the park" also highlighted food and lots of it with conversation, picture-taking and all the reminiscing that goes with an old-time get-together.

Aunt's arrival prompts reunion

A VISIT FROM his great-aunt, Hester, (Mrs. Barth Holmes) of London, England took Roger and Aileen Allyn to Lakewood, Ohio over the week-end. Making the trip down with his brother-in-law and sister, Tom and Bethann Swan of Dearborn Heights, the Allyn's were among the 55 relatives who congregated for a family reunion.

The two couples stayed at the home of cousins, Jerry and Diane Hurd in Lakewood Friday and Saturday nights and on Sunday joined the clan at the Cleveland home of an uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Allyn.

It being Mrs. Holmes' first visit to the States in 15 years, she had much catching up to do with the growth of the family. Also attending from Michigan were Roger's parents, the Franklin Allyn's of Detroit who motored south with Larry and Norma McClure and daughter, and their two children from Redford.

Others traveled from Washington, D.C., Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, Gary and Indianapolis, Indiana, and Florence, Kentucky for the occasion.

The week-end was centered around poolside activities, picnic lunches, dinners outings and a final cooperative dinner-party on Sunday before everyone departed.

College degrees come from off-duty study

By PEARL MORRIS WH-1-1187

Their first child, a 7 pound, 11 ounce boy, was born June 6 to Mr. and Mrs. James E. Lancaster, 14 Locust Drive, Belleville. The infant arrived at Garden City Osteopathic Hospital and was named James Craig. The baby's father is a 1971 graduate of Belleville High School and his mother, the former Peggy Rush, was a 1972 graduate of Romulus High School.

MRS. HARVEY (Betty) Rhodes of Belleville and her daughter and granddaughter, Mrs. Sandy Ballard and Terri of Olive Street, are back home after an enjoyable two weeks motor trip to California. They visited relatives and friends in California and did some sightseeing in Los Angeles, San Diego and Tijuana, Mexico. Visits to Sea World and Disneyland were highlights of their travel itinerary.

Intake curbed

An interesting concept for curbing cholesterol intake is being investigated in Australia. Rather than cutting the human consumption of cholesterol, scientists are having the animals do the cutting down. The results on a preliminary basis have been that the diet produced milk and meat with 10 times the usual ratio of polyunsaturated fats to saturated ones, and that the people eating the meat and dairy products from the test animals experienced an almost immediate 10 per cent drop in their blood-cholesterol levels.

is scheduled for July 16 through July 20 at the Community United Methodist Church on Olive Street. However, there is still a need for more teachers. If you can spare five mornings from your busy summer schedule, please phone Arlene Ferris - 941-3474. The classes will be in session from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. each morning.

THEODORE BROWN of Romulus (son of the W.J. Browns of Wayne Road) was recently awarded a Masters of Arts Degree in teaching from the University of West Florida and was also recently promoted to Warrant Officer Third Class. Brown didn't even have a high school diploma when he entered the U.S. Navy 15½ years ago. Now, through off-duty study, he has earned his high school diploma, a Bachelor of Arts Degree and a Masters of Arts in teaching. His wife, Virginia, and three children, Rodney, Dale and Julia, were on hand to witness his latest promotion. Brown will be departing shortly for assignment with VW-4 (the Hurricane Hunters) in Jacksonville. He hopes to become a teacher upon his retirement from the Navy.

THE NEXT meeting of the Ladies Missionary Group is scheduled for 10 a.m. Thursday at the Calvary Baptist Church on Ozga Road.

JACK SHICK and son, Jack Gene of Romaine Street recently attended the auto races in Toledo, Ohio. It was incorrectly stated in last week's paper that Mrs. Jack Shick and son attended.

MR. AND MRS. Don Morris and children, Eric and Kristin, of Walnut Drive are back home after vacationing for two weeks in Florida. They visited relatives and enjoyed sightseeing. Highlight of the trip for the two youngsters was a visit to Walt Disney World.

THERE WILL BE a meeting of the United Methodist Men's Club Sunday morning, July 8, at the Community United Methodist Church on Olive Street. The gathering gets underway with breakfast at 7:30 a.m.

In Washington D.C. they will be joined by youth from various other states for six days of touring Capitol Hill, government buildings, historical sites, and memorials to great Americans. On Tuesday Gerald and the Wayne County Group expected to meet their Congressman from the 15th District, William D. Ford. Gerald, the son of Gerald Diepenhorst, will be a junior at Romulus High School this fall. He is an outstanding academic student and was elected president of his class for 1973-74 school year.

MRS. MARY WILSON 75, of Huron River Drive South is reported improving from recent strokes and is now a patient at Pine Knoll Rest Home, 23600 Northline Road (east of Telegraph), Taylor. Scandinavian summer treat Fine foods are as much a part of the heritage of the Scandinavian countries as the explorations of Leif Ericson and the Viking conquests. The Scandinavians "invented" the smorgasbord spread ... renowned for its sumptuous and scrumptious array of appetizing cold food courses, from soup to nuts.

It was the Scandinavian smorgasbord that inspired the American tradition of buffet meals, a casual style of entertaining that's especially favored by hostesses in the summertime for its convenience and casualness. Here's a recipe from the importers of Bordo pitted and diced dates for a smorgasbord favorite that will add a colorful touch to any buffet table.

It's Chilled Scandinavian Fruit Soup — a dish featuring a delectable medley of the naturally sweet flavors of fresh apples and pears, cherries, raisins, apricots and Bordo imported dates.

Though the recipe calls for some advance planning — the prepared soup should be chilled overnight in the refrigerator — the result is well worth the effort. It's "souper" as either soup or a dessert course!

Chilled Scandinavian Fruit Soup

- ½ cup dried prunes
- ½ cup dried apricot halves
- ½ cup seedless raisins
- 3 cups cold water
- 1 cinnamon stick
- 2 large fresh apples, peeled, cored and sliced
- 2 fresh pears, peeled, cored and sliced
- 1 8-oz. package Bordo imported diced dates or Bordo whole dates, cut up
- 1 1-lb. can unsweetened sour red cherries
- 1 3-oz. package cherry-flavored gelatin
- 1 cup boiling water

Place prunes, apricots and raisins in a large saucepan. Add the three cups of cold water and soak fruits for one hour. Then, add cinnamon stick, sliced apples and sliced pears to soaked fruit mixture. Simmer over low heat for 15 minutes, then add Bordo imported dates and cherries (including liquid). Bring mixture to a boil. In a separate pan, dissolve gelatin in the one cup of boiling water, then stir it into the fruit mixture. Chill overnight. Serve garnished with a dollop of sour cream, lemon slice and a whole Bordo imported pitted date. Yield: eight servings.

For other taste-tempting date recipes, write for Bordo's colorful, free booklet, "A Modern Almanac of Date Recipes." Direct your request to: Bordo Date Book, Bordo Products Company, Dept. DJE, 2825 North Sheffield Avenue, Chicago, Illinois 60657.

MR. AND MRS. DAVID GOODE

Dombeks host open house for the David Goodes

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Dombek of Martinsville Road entertained Sunday, June 23, in honor of their son-in-law and daughter, Sgt. and Mrs. David Goode. The open house served as a chance for friends and relatives to meet Sergeant Goode and also as a farewell to the couple who will soon be leaving for Germany.

Mrs. Goode, the former Cindy Dombek, is a graduate of Belleville High School and Central Michigan University. For the past two years she taught art at Sault Ste. Marie. Her husband, a native of Frankfort, Kentucky is a diet technician with the U.S. Air Force. He had been stationed at Kincheloe Air Force Base and June 24 left for Wasserkuppe, Germany where he will begin a two-year tour of duty. Mrs. Goode plans to join him in a few weeks.

Guests were present from Florida, Illinois, Poland, Detroit, Dearborn, Brooklyn, Taylor, Flat Rock, Carleton, New Boston, and Belleville.

Eliminate breeding places

You, as a private citizen, can help in your community pest-control program by making sure that you are not providing breeding places on your own property. Here are some hints for an effective home mosquito-control program from the mosquito-control experts, "6-12 Plus" Insect Repellent:

Look for standing water on your property and eliminate it wherever possible.

Remove all temporary water containers. Even a little water standing in a tin can is enough to spawn hundreds of mosquitoes.

Place discarded bicycle and automobile tires in places where water cannot get into them.

Fill in tree holes with concrete.

See that cesspools, septic tanks, rain barrels and tubs in which water is stored are tightly covered.

Empty and thoroughly wash birdbaths and watering pans for livestock at least once a week.

Examine flat roofs after rains, to be sure no water remains on them.

Drain or fill in stagnant pools and swampy places. If pools cannot be drained or filled in, remove debris and floating vegetation.

Vacation homes can give architects a touch of freedom

Whether you own them — or design them — vacation homes let you escape the routine.

An architect who specializes in residential and vacation home design says that most of today's housing "is not what people want," because its design is influenced by "routine" deterrents ranging from local zoning to the architectural preferences of the neighborhood.

According to Robert Martin Engelbrecht, AIA, head of R. M. Engelbrecht and Associates, Princeton, N.J., the result is "homes" burdened with status requirements and local criteria.

Vacation homes, however, allow "a freedom of design that is as much an escape from these restrictions as a vacation is from a daily job."

THIS "FREER ASPECT" of vacation homes was evidenced in a market survey undertaken by Engelbrecht's firm for a group of some 20 major building product manufacturers.

Companies such as the Andersen Corp. of Bayport, Minn., a leading window manufacturer, felt the character of vacation homes was changing radically — as were owner and builder demands. The survey showed that do-it-yourself vacation "cottages" were giving way to sophisticated, high-quality leisure homes — some costing more than primary residences — and that owners were demanding "exciting" designs, comfort, and low-maintenance convenience features.

To meet these demands, Engelbrecht's firm has designed a continuing series of contemporary vacation homes. When necessary, the present 21 designs will be updated, and new ones are expected to be added each year.

THE HOUSES are designed for all geographic locations, including beach and mountain areas.

They tend to be spacious and lofty; feature large decks and wide glass areas; and have a "wood look." Modular construction is often used to achieve design flexibility.

Quality building materials are specified to assure that the homes will meet "contemporary standards." For example, all designs call for low-maintenance windows and gliding patio doors.

These units have vinyl-clad wood-core sash and frames that won't require painting and will not pit, rust or corrode. Double-pane insulating glass — which eliminates the inconvenience of separate storm sash — is standard.

ONE OF THE most dramatic designs in the series is the Olympic — a two-story eagle's nest perched on columns and "connected" to a hillside by a bridge. There's a spiral staircase between floors, and three "lookout" decks.

Gliding patio doors and casement windows open the house to sunlight and views.

This home and other designs are depicted in the Series II Vacation Plan Guide, available for two dollars from V-PAC Council, P.O. Box 622 Princeton, N.J. 08540.

Table leads many lives

Ever stop to think how many different uses your dining table serves?

B. Brody Seating Company, manufacturer of dining furniture, notes that the table often serves for preparing meals, sorting out ironing, pursuing hobbies, figuring out the budget, the children's homework, mom's sewing and mending, and dad's late night office work.

On top of all this, the table is expected to look stylish at mealtimes.

Which it can be if you select an up-to-date dining set from your local retailer.

According to Brody, dining furniture is available in a wide range of styles and price ranges to suit any need, and serve all the functions that a dining set is put to.

For daily use

Deck invites outdoor living

What good is the great outdoors if you're too busy to enjoy it? Or you just don't take the time, because it isn't convenient.

It isn't necessary to pack the car with gear, round up the family, and head for the hills or the beach. Not if you have a leisure activity area at home, with patio furniture or built-in benches available for instant relaxation.

One family enhanced its indoor and outdoor living simultaneously by adding a new dining room at the side of the house and a large deck adjacent to the new room and the living room.

Improve your HOME

THE DECK and dining room addition is on posts over the sloping side of the lot, allowing use of the area below for a carport, garden workbench and storage.

The deck, reached through wood-framed sliding glass doors where dining room and living rooms meet, is conveniently placed for daily use and for entertaining.

Full window walls in the living and dining rooms visually expand and blend the rooms and deck together into one large living area.

The deck is of 2x4-inch Douglas fir laid flat and the solid railing, which blocks cold breezes, is faced with 1x8-inch western cedar siding, matching the house.

A DECKED walkway around the dining room and along the kitchen wall leads to a smaller deck off the family room at the back of the house, and allows easy washing of windows.

Wood benches in the outer corner of the deck are used to display potted plants, and larger containers with small trees and shrubs give the deck a relaxed, natural feeling.

Care should be taken with plants on a raised deck, as warm air rising through the spaced 2x4s will dry out plants and soil quickly, making more frequent watering necessary.

Basement too valuable for storage use only

Space in basements is too valuable to be used only for storage. How much more useful to turn it into a room the whole family can enjoy. One of the advantages of a downstairs living area is its isolation from the rest of the house — it can be used as a refuge from activities elsewhere in the home, or as the entertainment center.

Because the family room gets a great deal of wear, the Better Floors Council recommends installing a flooring of tough, long-lasting vinyl asbestos tile. It is low in price, easily installed by a handy homeowner, and maintenance is minimal.

Because resilient floor tile is a permanent flooring, the council advises giving careful thought to pattern and color — pick something you'll like for a long time or that will go with decorating changes in other furnishings.

Embossed vinyl asbestos tile patterns are particularly suited for recreation rooms — such designs as pebble, mosaic and travertine, as well as wood and brick patterns work well here. But vinyl asbestos is made in many designs, from the traditional Spanish-Moorish to Early American to contemporary.

Tile can be used to divide the room according to Activities by installing different colors.

A conversation grouping around a fireplace can be defined with darker or lighter tile. Since vinyl asbestos tile designs are available in many colors, your choice is wide.

Tile good choice for remodelers

In old houses there usually is a mixture of marred hardwood and pine, old resilient tile and linoleum on the floors. The problem for remodelers is: do you refurbish, cover over, or rip out? Usually you end up doing some of each.

Unless they are very badly gashed or warped, hardwood and parquet floors can be sanded and refinished to look like new. Linoleum is easily removed. Old asphalt tile that is smooth and firm can be covered with new vinyl asbestos tile, according to the Better Floors Council.

This versatile tile also is a good choice to cover ugly wood floors. If the floor is double wood construction, adequately ventilated, and the boards three-inch less in width, the tile may be installed directly on it. However, with single wood floors or where the boards are more than three-inch wide, you should first install an underlayment of plywood or hardboard. Vinyl asbestos can also be installed directly on concrete after any holes and cracks are filled and the floor is smooth.

Adhesive-back vinyl asbestos tile is ideal for do-it-yourself remodelers. All you do is remove a paper from the back of the tile and press down. The floor can be walked on as soon as the tile is in place.

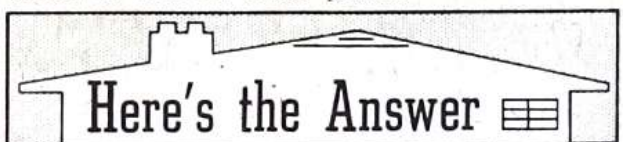

Don't sleep on stomach

If you want your children to grow into attractive adults, be sure they sleep on their backs, says Sally Ames, sleep consultant to the Spring Air Mattress Company, Chicago.

The advice is based on a five-year study by a Colorado Springs dental researcher who found that sleeping on the stomach or side can cause crooked teeth, facial malformations, and poor posture.

To prevent such problems in your children, says the study report, place them on their backs at bedtime and check on them periodically to be certain they remain in that position.

THE PRODUCT — Roof shingles with a fiber-glass core.

Manufacturer's claim — That these shingles have a U. L. Class A rating against fire ... that they are light in weight and can be applied over an old roof ... that they do not warp, blister or distort ... that they protect against hurricane-force winds and driving rains ... that they are ruggedly constructed of five layers, including ceramic-surfaced granules embedded in asphalt

... that they have a grained pattern, come in two different styles to complement any architectural design ... and that there is a choice of five colors.

Rains wipe out Romulus games

Huron Valley mopping up in Class A

The rains may have wiped out all of the 16 games in the two Romulus Parks and Recreation Adult Slo-Pitch Leagues, but the torrential storms couldn't erase the fact that Huron Valley Steel is the team to beat in the Class A League.

Huron Valley, which has strung together a phenomenal 34-game winning streak over the past 2½ years, is undefeated in its first eight starts in this year's campaign.

And enjoying a two-game spread over its closest rival, Beck-Howell Carpets (6-2), the league-leaders apparently aren't in any immediate danger of losing that lead.

MEANWHILE, it's quite a different story over in the "B" League where anything and everything could happen before a champ finally emerges.

Polka Dot Party Store and Morgan Manor are still "running neck-and-neck" for the lead as both teams have compiled 7-1 won-lost records.

However, Walter's Bar, a perennial title contender, is still in reach of the front-runners. Walter's has won five of its nine starts and is seated in third place.

With the weatherman's cooperation, the race will resume tomorrow as all 16 teams are scheduled to see action in both leagues.

There will also be a host of makeup games caused by the recent rains.

IN TOMORROW'S action, Romulus Hardware and Carpentry by Woodcraft will meet, in a 7:30 contest at the high school, that will put the winner back in the title chase in "A" league.

At the Junior High School, four-time loser Romulus Welding must defeat Beck-Howell Carpets if they are to save their fading title hopes.

In "B" league, Walter's Bar must handle Polka Dot Party

Store, in a game played at the Romulus Jr. High Tennis Courts.

Tuesday, July 12, finds a big doubleheader treat for fans at Mt. Pleasant Elementary.

The leader in each loop will meet in a rematch that could go a long way in determining the winners in each league.

Huron Valley Steel will take on Beck-Howell Carpets in a "must" win game for the carpetmen at 6:00 p.m.

Huron came out on top in the last encounter by a 4 to 3 score and another win by Huron could just about wrap up the 1973 league title for the steelmen.

Then, at 7:30 "B" league co-leaders Morgan Manor and Polka Dot Party Store will take over and battle for sole possession of first place.

In their last confrontation Morgan emerged victorious by pushing across a run in the last of the eighth inning for a 5 to 4 win.

Niemi talks about his new job

By TOM MOORADIAN

Tom Niemi is a man on the spot. He knows it. And has accepted the situation with his eyes wide open.

Niemi, who will be 32-years-old in August, was appointed by the Van Buren Board of Education to replace Allen Gates as the next head basketball coach at Belleville High School.

Gates had three years in which to forge a championship team. He failed and subsequently handed in his resignation. There is or was or has been no time table handed Niemi to turn the Tigers into winners but, Belleville, as many other high schools nowadays, apparently will not tolerate anything less than championship caliber ball.

"I'm AWARE OF the difficulties at the high school," said Niemi, who's stepping into his first head coaching job, "and, hopefully, we can build a basketball program that the city of Belleville will be proud of."

The new coach added that he has not met with members of the team, but has scheduled a meeting with the players to see who, if any, would be available for a summer cage clinic.

"Let me add that I'm will aware the Suburban 8 Conference is a very strong league," said Niemi, "I know the high schools well."

Belleville is affiliated with the likes of Redford Union, Livonia Bentley, Dearborn, Edsel Ford, Allen Park, Plymouth and Trenton in the "8" league.

Niemi, who was born in Detroit, received his primary education in the Upper Peninsula. He graduated from Rock River Township High School in Eben, Michigan where he lettered in basketball, cross country and track.

TOM SHOULDN'T have any difficulty finding his way around as his M.A. is in geography, earned at Eastern Michigan University. He received his bachelor's from Northern Michigan University, majoring in his history and taking minors in geography and economics.

He served as an assistant basketball coach to Bob Visser at Livonia Franklin and as an assistant track coach to Bob Holmes at the same school. However, when the coffers began to deplete and the residents of that city refused to dig further into their pockets, Niemi lost his coaching duties due to the board of education's cutbacks.

"I feel very fortunate to have worked with the very fine men and women in Livonia and I will miss them," he said, "but the coaching job at Belleville is an opportunity for me to see what I can do with my own team."

"And I just couldn't pass it up," Niemi added.

Niemi will have Ted Grignon back to assist him at Belleville but he will have lost center Al Cicotte, who was graduated in June.

Rivals coaches can prepare to see a variety of defenses from the teams that Niemi will field and he likes to use "controlled fast breaks on offense."

Married to Patricia, the Niemis have one child, a 1½ year old boy, Chris. They make their home in Livonia.

"We have a lot of work ahead of us, like getting the summer clinic started, that will be our first step," Niemi said.

It's a start, Tom, and like you said - there's a lot of work ahead.

IT ISN'T often a woman shoots a hole-in-one and has her husband standing by, watching.

But that's what happened to Sherry Erb, whose husband, Doug, is the golf pro at Knob On The Lake Golf Course in Belleville. Mrs. Erb became the first woman in the history of the one-year-old golf course to fire an ace. She did it on the 75-yard, No. 3 hole, using a wedge.

"She just stood there and screamed her head off," sighed Doug, who was quick to point out "it's the first hole-in-one I have ever seen. Sherry didn't know what to say and it took her time to recover."

Rolling to a 7-2 victory over Auto Air Cargo and turning back Belleville Mobile Home 15-1, Blue Boar Inn continued to hold down the top of the standings in the Belleville Softball League.

Blue Boar's 12-1 won-lost ratio is the best in the eight-team league while the Belleville Teachers and PLAV are close on the leaders' heels with 10-2 and 10-3 records, respectively.

Mrs. Erb scored a hole-in-one, carding the ace on the 75-yard, No. 3 hole. She used a wedge. Also playing with the "lucky golfer" were Mrs. Erb's husband, Doug, who is the pro at the golf course, Nick Russu and Paul Faverio. Sherry finished the round with a 49. Her husband shot a even par 36.

Diamonds sparkle

The trio of Debbie Sanders, Sherry Compton and Margaret Ayers belted out a total of 12 hits — four apiece — as the Romulus City Diamonds romped to a 17-7 victory over the Roadrunners in the Romulus Women's Softball League last week.

A total of five Diamond batters had at least three hits off Roadrunner starter and loser Celeste Folmar.

For the losers, Linda Donovan and Celeste Folmar stroked three hits apiece and Marlene Johnson and Cindy Dohar hit safely twice. Phyllis Reeves recorded the mound victory.

SANDRA SELLE'S three singles and a home run proved to be too much for the Odd Squad to handle as the Kel-Joys glided to a 6-2 win. Losing pitcher Cindy Hood served up three hits also to Brenda Dryer and twin safeties to Sharon Boggett, Joan Holstrom, Cindy Nixon, Kathy Galinski, Chris McCue and Debbie Nieman.

Winner Cindy Hood dished out a homer to Pat Propst and two hits each to Susie Daniel and Peggy Rieber.

It was a slugger's battle between the Ms. Fits and Seekers, though the Ms. Fits won by only a 5-3 score.

Five Ms. Fits players clouted two or more hits, while the Seekers preferred collecting extra-base hits.

WINNER SHARON Howie withstood Chris Bresnay's triple and single and Jane Hagerman's three base hits

Huron baseball results

Little doubt remains as to why Fire Department No. 3 is in first place in the Huron Township Little League, after its 19-0 ambush of Huron Sod Farms in last week's action.

Ron Schwartz victimized the Sod-men by firing a three-hitter.

On the other end of the totem pole, last-place Tuffy Muffler finally recorded its first victory with a 6-3 decision over Chris Maciolek.

Fourth-place Krzyske Lumber tripped George Moore, 6-3, and Dugan Lumber dumped Orchard Grove Inn, 9-4.

In earlier games, Dugan edged George Moore, 1-0, and Fire Department bombed Maciolek, 26-2.

Northwood hosts basketball clinic

MIDLAND, Mich. — Basketball making with All-American Fred Smiley will be the primary teaching objective when Northwood Institute hosts its first Summer Basketball Camp here July 15-20.

Basketball activity will take place in Midland High School gym, a modern 14-basket facility. Campers will live in the residence halls on the Northwood Institute campus.

"By limiting the enrollment to high school age players we hope our camp will be very competitive," said camp director Jack Arduin. Attention will be given to all phases of defensive play, offensive techniques and strategy while instruction will be on both a group and individual basis.

Arduin has compiled a 57-33 record in four years of college basketball coaching at Detroit College and Northwood Institute. He also has 11 years of high school coaching experience and five years as an athletic camp instructor.

Gavrila joins NFL Patriots' staff

By TOM MOORADIAN

The meek inherit the Earth? Not if Nick Gavril, a 42-year-old Garden City physical education teacher who was recently appointed as strength coach for the New England Patriots, can help it.

"There is too much tension in this country," Gavril said, "and one way to work it out is through barbells. We need more weightlifting programs in our schools."

Apparently, the Patriots agree with Gavril's philosophy. They hired him as a strength coach.

"A strength coach is responsible for developing the bodies of the players," explained Gavril. "This would include strengthening the muscles through the process of weightlifting. I would also be responsible for strengthening the weak as well as injured parts of the body."

ONLY ABOUT HALF of the 22 NFL teams have strength coaches - but the idea is catching on. The Detroit Lions have yet to hire such a specialist.

"Most of the players at one time or other have been involved in weight lifting programs," pointed out Gavril, "Steve Owens (Lions) and Earl Morrall (Colts) are just a few."

"But coaches are finding there is more than just a need for weightlifting," he continued. "One of the main problems in football, especially professional football, is conditioning. Many of the players after absorbing all the punishment, have a tendency to lay off during the off season."

"Then there's the banquet circuit and physical conditioning diminishes, so our jobs as strength coaches is to set up a program for each player to keep him in shape."

Gavril, who in the early fifties was one of the top weightlifters in the nation, pointed out that linemen would need a separate kind of program, for example, than the ends or backs, because of the different jobs they do.

"Consequently, my job is to put the body under stress conditions that would be encountered in a game," he said.

A ST. FRANCIS XAVIER (Ecorse) and Michigan State University graduate, Gavril has the credentials to build not only body but soul.

He was MSU's weightlifting team captain during 1951-54 and also led the Spartans to the 1953 National championship. Then, competing in the 148-pound class, Nick also won a national title, the North American title and also the National YMCA crown.

In 1956 he missed out going to the Australian staged Olympics as a member of the USA team when he finished second in the team trials.

Along with his Liberal Arts degree from MSU, Gavril also has earned degrees in education administration from Eastern Michigan University and theology from the University of Detroit.

He is a part-time religion teacher at Wayne Community College, who also teaches physical education at William Ford School (Dearborn) and is strength coach for a highly-touted Birmingham Brother Rice football team.

Ex-Belleville QB joins NBD team

A former Belleville high school star quarterback is back in the key slot, and this time he is calling the plays for National Bank of Detroit.

Marvin C. Wenzel, Jr., 31, a life long resident of Belleville, has been appointed as Manager of NBD's Belleville Instant Loan Center at 397 Main Street.

An NBD employee for the past three years, Wenzel takes on the new assignment after 2½ years as a Senior Adjuster at the Bank's Wayne office.

"I'M VERY pleased to be named manager of the Belleville Instant Loan Center," said Wenzel. "Having lived in Belleville all my life, I understand the needs of the community. Hopefully this will help me better serve NBD's Belleville customers with their loaning needs."

Wenzel's association with NBD extends back to his childhood. "My father and all of my uncles have always dealt with NBD. It is the only

Too much time, apparently, for she finished with a 49. Doug, who is giving his wife lessons, said that after "that shot maybe she should be giving me a couple of tips." Mrs. Erb has been playing golf for nearly a year now.

Anyway, can't you just see the picture - anytime Doug wants to open his mouth, his wife plugs it with "I shot an ace, dear. When are you going to get one?"

Let's see what our letter writers have to say for today.

Dear Mr. Mooradian,

I read with great interest your column of Friday, June 22 about the Michigan High School Athletic Association's plans for staging high school football playoffs to determine a state champ next year.

I think it's great. And about time. They do it for so many other sports such as cross country, golf, basketball, swimming, wrestling, tennis, baseball - you name it.

And football is one sport that usually fattens the schools' coffers while the other sports, with maybe the exception of basketball, are parasitic.

HOWEVER, you fail to mention one important aspect in your system, (to let each league champ represent the league in the playoffs). As you well know, there are scores of schools, as Romulus High, that are not affiliated with leagues. How would they fit into the playoff system?

There are numerous high schools across the state who like to play "independent" schedules and there are others who are forced to do so because they are troublemakers and no one wishes to play with them.

If you can find some way to fit the "unattached schools" into the playoff system, then I figure you're in business.

Sincerely,
Darryl Robinson
Romulus

Dear Darryl,

You would have to bring up the "independent high schools." Now I will have to go back to the drawing boards and come up with another design.

The Sports Meridian

And here's one from Hal Middlesworth, P.R. man for our one and only Detroit Tigers.

Dear Tom,

Free Bat Day at Tiger Stadium (June 17) was the most enjoyable in the 10-year history of the event.

There was a bare minimum of pounding of bats by the youngsters - by all odds one of the best-behaved groups we have ever had.

Largely responsible, we are sure, were the advance efforts of the many writers and broadcasters who urged our young fans to make it a "safe and sane" occasion. Everyone can be proud of the results.

Jim Campbell asks me to extend to all of you his sincere personal appreciation and the thanks of our entire organization.

Hal Middlesworth
Public Relations Director

And now from our pals at DRC (Detroit Race Course).

Dear Tom:

Please accept our warm thanks for your great two-day coverage (column and pictures) of the Wolverine harness scene this past June 4 and 5. It was just great!

Wolverine had a fine, fine harness meeting, Tom, and it only happened because of the excellent coverage (yes, I certainly mean entries and results daily, too) we received from nice folks such as The Daily Eag².

Please also pass on our appreciation to Bob Knoke — and to both of you a promise that we'll always be available out here for whatever help or courtesies you might want. It will be a pleasure.

We do not open our thoroughbred racing season until July 30, but Dick Wilson, Kenny Christopher and myself will pretty much be on the scene here throughout the interim, so call us if you need us.

Warmest regards,
Earl Flora

Family sets a first

ANN ARBOR — For the first time in Michigan athletic history a family spanning three generations has earned varsity 'M' awards.

When baseball coach Moby Benedict awarded his freshman shortstop, Dick Waltherhouse an 'M', it completed a cycle that started in 1916 when his grandfather, the late George Waltherhouse, earned the first of two 'M's in baseball and continued in 1943 when his father, Dick, won a baseball letter. The Waltherhouses are from Ann Arbor.

Ranking next to the Waltherhouses in rare family athletic participation in a single sport at Michigan where the Adams family's sophomore pitcher Art Adams earned his varsity award in baseball this spring. His brother, Pete (1963-65), and grandfather Tom (1918) were Michigan baseball letterwinners.

When he has time - and one wonders when that possibly could be - Nick teams with former Olympic and AAU champ, Norb Schmansky to stage weightlifting clinics.

"WITH ALL the twisting and turning in football, knee injuries are the most common and usually the most damaging to players," says Gavril. "And strength exercises can eliminate some of those injuries."

"A strength coach plays a key role in rehabilitation. Exercises to strengthen a weakened area gets players back on their feet sooner."

Nick has three boys who apparently are eyeing athletic careers. Nick Jr., a 15-year-old student at Radcliff Junior High was the wrestling team's Most Valuable Player and he, along with brother Glenn, 13, have already earned red belts in Karate. Then there are Tommy, 10, and Teresa, 6.

Mrs. Gavril is a staunch fan but has one problem: supplying the young athletes with the right foods for their athletic ambitions.

County officials in Michigan endorse bill which will modernize government

Legislation to enable the voters to modernize their county governments was moved into position for adoption after officials of major counties endorsed the bill.

The bill would permit the creation of a county executive office and the reorganization of the county structure.

The House Towns and Counties Committee sent the measure, Senate Bill 229, to the House floor by a 7-4 vote June 21, after holding a hearing in Detroit.

OFFICIALS of Wayne, Jackson and Bay counties supported the bill at the June 19 hearing in the City-County Building auditorium. The Senate passed the measure by a 30-3 vote last April.

The bill also was endorsed by representatives of the Leagues of Women Voters of Michigan, the Oakland County Democratic Party and a citizens' group called New County, Michigan, Inc.

Macomb County was the only county represented which opposed the measure.

Senate Bill 229 would permit the voters of a county to elect a county executive with powers similar to a strong mayor or to authorize the County Board of Commissioners to appoint a county manager.

THE MEASURE, known as the Optional County Form of Government bill, also would permit the streamlining of the county structure. Major departments would be under the direction of the executive or manager and the number of appointed boards and commissions would be limited to those specified in the act.

In testifying before the House committee, Wayne County Commissioner Paul Silver declared that "the present structure of county government in Michigan is out-moded and badly in need of modernization."

He said the problem is particularly acute in large, urban counties such as Wayne, and noted that efforts to improve the county structure have been under way "for approximately half a century."

Silver described the lack of a single executive office as "the single worst flaw in the county structure." He noted that all other levels of government, plus virtually all private organizations, have a chief executive.

IN COUNTY GOVERNMENT, executive powers are scattered among the elective offices and various appointed boards and commissions.

Creation of an executive office "alone would be an improvement of such great magnitude that it justifies passage of the bill," Silver stated. He said he favors an elected executive for Wayne County.

However, Silver described the bill as "less than perfect" because it mandates the continued existence of 21 appointed boards and commissions which are not directly accountable to the voters.

All present elective offices would be retained under the bill.

THE BILL was introduced in the Senate by Sen. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, a former member of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners. It has been amended considerably since, but still has Pursell's support.

The League of Women Voters were represented by Mrs. Elizabeth Cook, of Allen Park.

"We feel the county voters should have to options for self-determination that Senate Bill 229 makes possible," she stated.

Ray McPeters, counsel to the Macomb County Board of Commissioners, was the only county spokesman against the bill. He charged it would take power away from county boards and concentrate too much power in the county executive office.

SPEAKERS for the Northeast (Detroit) Mothers Alert on Common Problems and the 15th Congressional District

Conservative Democratic Caucus, opposed the bill. They charged it would be a step toward metropolitan government.

Under the bill, the Board of Commissioners would choose which alternative — elected executive or appointed manager — to put on the ballot.

The proposed optional form could also be placed on the ballot by petition of at least 10 percent of the voters.

Fires in state take record death toll

Michigan in 1972 had 86,110 fires which caused 304 deaths and a new record of $123 million in property damage, according to the State Police fire marshal division annual summary.

The deaths were down by 48 from the record 352 set in 1971. The total included 233 adults, 70 children and one fireman. Not included in the total were 31 fatalities in fire that followed 26 car and five plane crashes.

The fire total was a reduction of about 15,000 compared with the record annual high of 101,730, also set in 1971.

THE PROPERTY loss was nearly $9 million greater than the previous mark of $114 million in 1971.

The loss included $66.2 million in buildings, $42.9 million in contents, and $13.8 million involving cars, boats, aircraft, unheated machinery, grass and woodland fires. The 1971 loss was $110 million.

There were 90 large loss fires (over $50,000) with damage totaling $27.9 million. Arson was listed as cause in 16 with $4.4 million damage. Though arson was suspected in some, cause was not determinable in 18 large loss fires with $11.2 million damage. Arson fires caused eight deaths in 1972.

The summary section on arson statistics showed 4,621 fires with $10.3 million damage. The breakdown listed 940 fires for profit, seven involving civil disorder, 394 resulting from pyromania, and 3,280 with miscellaneous motives.

MAJOR CATEGORIES of the breakdown of the fire total included grass and brush 18,146, dwellings 24,045, autos 15,300, house trailers 1,093, theaters, restaurants, etc.

CARELESSNESS again caused most fire, 17,586. These included rubbish burning 5,500, and carelessness in smoking and in the use of matches 6,810.

Dwelling fires, including trailers and apartments, accounted for 171 of the 234 adult deaths and for 66 of the 70 minors.

Smoking in bed and other careless smoking was listed as the leading cause of adult deaths with 75.

Careless smoking, clothing catching fire, and heating units were prime causes involving adult deaths. Defective heating units and playing with fire are still leading causes of children deaths.

A THOUGHT TO REMEMBER

BY HAROLD REDISKE, DIRECTOR

The Declaration of Independence is a faded document...The parchment may disintegrate in time...But the idea and physical sense of independence and freedom CAN remain intact...In the oratory, parades, pomp and beauty of fireworks - in the enjoyment of golfing, swimming, boating and family picnics on the 4th - all of which are traditionally proper, let's not forget July 4th is a precious legacy.

We celebrate the 4th because our fore-fathers were men of vision - with religion. We would have no 4th of July if those patriots lacked faith and if they had not fought bravely for freedom with a determination to endow future generations with the legacy of freedom. This legacy is NOT perpetually guaranteed. If we as a nation probe for comfort, security, excitement, possessions and wealth with more energy than we seek spiritual help and guidance, we deserve to lose our freedom, and ironically, our frivolities along with it. History proves this loss will occur if we ignore and show disrespect for Divine Providence on which our fore-fathers relied...

Faust proposes tax relief for senior citizens

A tax relief measure that would exempt Michigan residents 65 years of age or older from payment of the four per cent state sales tax on purchases of food or medicine for personal consumption was introduced in the Michigan legislature by Sen. William Faust (D-Westland).

"This legislation is designed to give our senior citizens some greatly needed tax relief... especially those that live on fixed incomes," said Faust.

He said social security benefits, pensions and Old-Age Assistance payments have failed to keep pace with the runaway inflation our economy has experienced under the Nixon administration.

"Because the income level of our senior citizens is limited, a greater percentage of their income is spent on the necessities of food and medicine. A flat rate of taxation, such as the four percent sales tax, hits these citizens harder," said Faust.

The Westland Democrat pointed out that there are nearly 800,000 Michigan citizens who will be affected by the bill.

"Data compiled by the Federal Government indicates that for medicine alone, the average annual expenditure for senior citizens is nearly 300 percent greater than that for the rest of the population," said Faust.

"Additionally, national figures show that senior citizens' medicinal costs tend to be immediate out-of-pocket expenses, rather than those paid for by third parties, such as insurance companies."

Faust concluded by saying that his proposed legislation is "a step toward easing the financial plight of our senior citizens who have contributed so much to Michigan."

U.S. Coast Guard offers boat tips

With the boating season in high sail, members of the United States Coast Guard Auxiliary are offering tips and a safe boating program for area boaters.

Marvin Shlain, a Flotilla staff officer, said a safe boating program will be sponsored by Royal Oak Flotilla 12-3 on Sunday, July 8 at the east boating ramp at Kensington Park.

Flotilla staff officers will inspect the boats. A courtesy Coast Guard decal will be awarded to owners of "safe operative boats."

In addition, an amphibious helicopter from the Air National Guard Base at Selfridge Field will be on display.

FREE SAFE boating literature will also be distributed to the public — listing guidelines to safety and "a summer of pleasure and safety on the waterways."

Schlain, serving as public relations officer, said there are 17 boating checks which "can save your life."

Some of the basic safety checks include hull and engine inspection, avoid boat overloading, check weather reports, and obey the rules of the road afloat.

IN KEEPING with the safety theme, President

Richard Nixon has proclaimed this week to be "National Safe Boating Week."

Shlain said the Coast Guard Auxiliary is an organization for men and women 16 years and older.

While Flotilla unit members wear Coast Guard uniforms, the auxiliary is a non-military civilian volunteer organization.

The auxiliary conducts safe boating programs for pleasure craft owners.

Additional information on the auxiliary unit can be obtained by writing to Shlain at 21661 Parklawn, Oak Park 48237 or by attending the July 8 safe boating program at Kensington Park.

Clean coal needed to lower pollution

The best tool for cleaning up the environment may be the bathtub.

Not an ordinary bathtub, but a sophisticated device to wash and vacuum sulfur from coal — the largest source of sulfur-oxide pollution in the United States. Sulfur is inert, but when burned, it creates a sulfuric acid mist in the air.

Coal-burning furnaces emit almost 17 million tons of sulfur-oxide pollution into the air we breathe each year; it could climb to 55 million tons by 1990 — more than enough to fill a freight train reaching from Los Angeles to New York and back.

THERE ARE 280 billion tons of coal reserves in the energy-starved eastern states. Less than 10 per cent can meet 1975 air-pollution standards. Utility companies, particularly in the east, count on coal as a prime energy source. It is inexpensive ($6 to $8 a ton) and more plentiful than oil, gas or nuclear energy.

Dr. Robert Meyers and a team of scientists found a way to remove 40 to 80 per cent of the sulfur from coal. They give it a warm bath (about the temperature of tepid tea) in a ferric sulfate solution.

The amount of sulfur removed depends on where the coal comes from. The Pittsburgh bed in Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Ohio has been described as the most valuable individual mineral deposit in the United States and perhaps the world.

THE MEYERS process can remove 50 to 70 per cent of the sulfur from Pittsburgh-bed coal, and 60 to 80 per cent from coal in the Lower Kittanning bed, also in Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

Dr. Meyers says processed coal produces more heat per pound, thereby conserving natural resource, and produces less ash than untreated coal.

Here's what happens: coal goes through a leacher, a separator and a washer, then is dried. Sulfur and ash are removed and the bathwater is cleaned and regenerated by running it through a precipitator and treating it with air.

REMOVING sulfur by the Meyers process won't end all sulfur-oxide pollution, Dr. Meyers says. It offers a much better chance, however, than stack scrubbers which trap sulfur after the coal is burned. Officials of the Federal Power Commission and the Environmental Protection Agency seem to agree.

"A stack-gas control device has to be at least as reliable as the power plant's combustion unit," says Robert Jameson, environmental adviser for the FPC. "Demands for energy vary throughout the day, but stack scrubbers run best in an unvarying pace."

Governor signs bingo act making it legal

The Bingo Act of 1972 took on some revisions last week as the governor signed three bills into law amending the act.

Under the law passed last year, bingo was to have become legal last April 1, but the lottery commissioner asked for more time to prepare procedures for licensing and regulation of the games.

House Bill 4289 delayed the effective date of legal bingo and made a number of other changes in the old law. Another bill made bingo winnings exempt from state income tax and a third bill allowed bingo and other games of chance at the State Fair Grounds.

BINGO BECOMES legal June 30 under the first bill, which also provides for several types of bingo licenses for non-profit organizations.

The regular license would cost $100 and will allow bingo once a week. For an additional $50, a licensee may hold games on other days of the week at locations other than on the regular license. Under the 1972 act, bingo could be conducted only once a week at one location but the new act allows bingo more than once a week at one location if separate organizations have obtained licenses.

A once-only bingo game license would cost $5, but if the organization wanted to conduct games several days in succession, the license would cost $50.

Another type of license, at a cost of $10, would be for senior citizen groups that want to play the game for entertainment rather than money maker. They would be allowed to play once a month and no prize could be worth more than $10.

IN ALL CASES other than the special senior citizen license, game prizes would be limited to a total of no more than $2,000 for one day, with no single prize valued at more than $500.

Such groups able for licenses would be religious, charitable, educational, fraternal, veterans, civic service and senior citizens organizations.

As an extra boon to bingo players, an act was also passed granting tax exempt status to bingo winnings, both money and merchandise. This applies to the state income tax only.

Bingo is not considered a revenue producer for the state, but as a shot in the arm to those charitable and educational organizations that are having problems raising money for their support. The license fees cover only the administrative costs.

Any non-profit organization granted tax exempt status for state income tax purposes may apply for a bingo license. Senior Citizen groups have an additional qualification in that they must have at least 15 members over the age of 60.

THOSE CIVIC service organizations applying for a license must accompany their application with a resolution passed by the city in which they operate and must contain a provision in their bylaws or constitution for the perpetuation of the organization as a non-profit organization whose entire assets are pledged to charitable purposes and for their entire assets to revert to the benefit of the city government upon dissolution of the organization.

The last act permits bingo and other games of chance at the State Fair Grounds. It would authorize the State Fair Authority to lease its facilities for bingo games throughout the year to licensed organizations.

Concessionaires would be permitted to conduct games of chance only during the fair itself.

Under the act, concessionaire games must not require great skill, the chance of winning must not be remote, and the prize must have a nominal value and not be redeemable for cash. Groups applying for a license may write for an application to the Bureau of State Lottery, 940 Long Blvd., Lansing, Michigan.

State Rep. Mahalak supports no-fault law

State Rep. Edward E. Mahalak (D-Romulus) commended the Michigan Supreme Court for its sanction of the state's No-Fault Auto Insurance Law. The court ruled that the legislature followed Constitutional procedures last year when it adopted the No-Fault Auto Insurance Law. The court found that the act does not violate Michigan's Constitution in any way.

A Supreme Court review of the law had been requested by the legislature. No-Fault auto insurance becomes effective October 1.

The law had been carefully researched and reviewed before it was passed by the Legislature," Mahalak said. "Yet we felt it was necessary that the Supreme Court rule on it. I supported the bill and am pleased by the court's decision. I feel that the court ruled prudently and is to be commended for its action."

Under no-fault persons who suffer injuries or loss in an auto accident will be reimbursed by their own insurance company, no matter who was at fault in the accident.

"Lawsuits, which under the present system commonly delay compensation for victims, will be permitted only for such things as death, serious impairment of body functions, permanent serious disfigurement, or intentional injury or property damage," Mahalak added.

"Under no-fault, Michigan residents will be provided with unlimited medical expenses and unlimited medical and economic rehabilitation benefits, as much as $1,000, per month in wage losses for as much as three years, survivors' economic benefits of as much as $1,000 a month for up to three years, funeral benefits of $1,000, virtually unlimited property damage coverage, and replacement services of as much as $20 a day for up to three years for injured non-wage earners such as housewives," he said.

For closing procedures

Real Estate One uses computer

Real Estate One is the first real estate company in the nation to install a Nixdorf computer system that can process all closing documents in a typical real estate transaction.

Daniel R. Williamson, vice-president and director of advertising and closing, explained that his company formerly prepared all closing documents manually. There are up to 16 possible closing papers that could be used in a transaction, although the average is something like six or seven documents, he said.

When each form was prepared manually, a typist had to insert each form in her typewriter, make tab and line adjustments, and then type out the information. Much of her typing was repetitive since each form had to have the name and address of the customer and other information that was virtually unchanged from one document to another.

THE REPETITIVE typing naturally required detailed audits, since there was opportunity for error each time a new form was processed.

Under the manual system, the element of error also hung heavy over figures used in the forms. Every real estate closing requires the development of figures from complex calculations and references to charts and tables. If an error were made in one document that was prepared manually, that error could be compounded in subsequent documents. And the time lost in tracing the original mistake and making the changes could be tremendous.

Williamson said his closing documents are now prepared automatically on a computer that was installed just a few weeks ago. The information for a real estate closing still is gathered in the same manner as before, he said, but now instead of each form having to be typed manually, they are prepared automatically.

"Our computer operator simply prepares a worksheet on the computer," he said. She is actually storing in the memory of the machine all the information that was gathered about a particular closing. The information is stored as she types the worksheet. Once the worksheet is typed, each closing document is prepared automatically, with all calculations figured and printed."

HE WENT ON to explain that the computer operator has only to place each form in the machine, and the form is automatically positioned for each new line to be printed. After the form has been printed, it is ejected automatically.

"The computer is programmed for the different types of real estate closings. The computer operator enters new and variable information as she prepares the worksheet for a closing. Then, as she prepares the closing documents, she presses the proper program key to release the necessary figures and information."

Williamson said he had thought about the possibility of using a computer for real estate closings for years, but the pressure of business kept him from checking more closely into the systems that are available.

In our increasingly complex society, the average American cannot possibly, on his own, find out about the events which will directly affect his life. The role of the free press is essential to the maintenance of American democracy. Unless the guarantee of press freedom is protected to the fullest extent, the role it has played will inevitably be diminished. If this happens the public, and not only the press, will be the loser.

Free Mechanic

with every car at Atchinson Ford

That's just another way to say, we guarantee your car from the road to roof, and from door to door and from bumper to bumper for the first year (or 12,000 miles) you own it.

And we'll help you keep that new car ride that you rightfully deserve. Mechanical service is free, thanks to our exclusive, copyrighted, Free Mechanic Warranty. It covers a lot of the little things that go wrong with your car, like a defective door latch. (Subject to the conditions of the factory warranty.) In addition you get a 15 percent parts and labor discount for the two subsequent years.

Frankly, not much goes wrong with our cars these days. But if it should, we pay the Mechanic.
